STORMS IN SOUTH TAKE FRIGHTFUL DEATH TOLL

OVER FIFTY DIE AS WIND'S FURY RAGES

Section of Georgia and Tennessee are Swept by Cyclonic Devastation --Property Loss Heavy

ILLINOIS CITIES ALSO HIT BY GALE

Widespread storms of cyclonic intensity, sweeping over the middle west and the south during the past twenty-four hours cut their way through towns and cities of five states, snuffed out scores of lives, made hundreds homeless and destroyed property valued high in the millions.

At noon today fifty-one persons were reported killed and the death list was growing.

Other sections of the country, from the great lakes to the gulf and the eastern seaboard to the Rockies were swept today by gales, rain and snow. The storm took its heaviest toll of life in Alabama, Tennessee and northwestern Georgia. From Nashville and Memphis came reports of cyclones half a mile wide sweeping through five counties, tumbling over scores of houses, brushing a dozen towns and killing twenty persons. Rome, Ga., told a similar story of the storm in northwestern Georgia, during the night, placing the dead at eighteen.

A cyclone one hundred yards wide ploughed through DeKalb county, Georgia, just east of Atlanta, cutting it off from the world and killed five persons. Two persons were killed in Columbus, Ga., six in northern Alabama.

Rome, Ga., March 14.—Eighteen persons are reported dead and many more injured as the result of the storm which swept over northwest Georgia last night. The property damage was very heavy.

A storm of cyclonic proportions struck Columbus early today, causing damage estimated at several hundred thousand dollars. Two persons were reported killed. Buildings of the Eagle and Phoenix mills and the Swift Manufacturing company were partly demolished, residences were blown down and street traffic demoralized.

FEAR DEATH LIST WILL GROW.

Devastated Section Cut Off From Wire Communication Today.

Atlanta, Ga., March 14.—Five known dead, at least a score injured and thousands of dollars' loss today marked the path of the severe rain and hail storm which swept this section just east of the city last night. The storm cut a swath about one hundred yards wide and extended through DeKalb county. Today the devastated section is entirely cut off from wire communication and later reports, it is feared, will swell the list of casualties.

The dead include:

WILLIAM BANKS and child, Clarkston.

MRS. SALLIE NASH and son at Tucker.

Unidentified negro at Tucker.

The injured: Esma Thomas, Tucker. Two Thomas children, one fatally. Paul Thomas, Tucker. M. L. Wing, Sylvester; G. W. Makbut, Sylvester.

Relief parties were sent out from Atlanta early today.

ILLINOIS CITIES HIT.

Damage at Chicago and Elsewhere Will Reach $1,000,000.

Chicago, March 14.—It is estimated that the damage done by the severe wind and rain storm which swept Chicago and Illinois last night and early today will aggregate nearly $1,000,000. In Chicago the wind attained a velocity of fifty miles an hour for several hours and scores of plate glass windows in all parts of the city were demolished.

Electric light wires were down and as a result many miles of streets were in darkness. Telegraph wires south and west were down and service impaired for a number of hours.

The damage in other parts of the state was heavy. At Quincy wires were blown

WAVE OF ECONOMY BRINGS WOE TO SENATE MASSEURS.

Washington, March 14.—One mournful expert masseur and two equally mournful assistants, who, ever since the senate office buildings' luxurious baths were opened, have smoothed the wrinkles from the brows of worried and care-ridden senators, have been told that they are to be dropped from the pay roll of the senate. Under the democratic control of the upper branch the reform is to be instituted at once, for Senator Overman, of North Carolina, has issued the decree. A single attendant, unskilled in the art of massage, will rule over the elaborate establishment.

The democratic committee has so revised the senate pay rolls that sixty positions are to be dropped, at a saving of $46,190 in the annual senate expenditure. Each democrat will have the distribution of positions paying $3,360 annually.

ARKANSAS HAS TWO GOVERNORS

Each Holds the Fort and Insists He is the Genuine Article.

TANGLE IS PECULIAR

Little Rock, Ark., March 14.—Two state senators yesterday laid claim to the office of Governor of Arkansas and each established an office at the capital. After the resignation of Governor Joseph T. Robinson, last Saturday, Senator W. G. Oldham, then president of the senate, succeeded to the office of governor, under the provision of the state constitution, which does not provide for a lieutenant governor but for the succession of the president of the senate. Monday, however, the senate elected Senator John M. Futrell, president pro tempore, to act as lieutenant governor until the legislature reconvenes two years hence.

Today the legislature adjourned, and Futrell appeared at the governor's office and demanded that Oldham retire in his favor. Oldham refused. Futrell established himself in the office of the president of the senate and both men sought to administer the affairs of the state.

The law provides that should a vacancy occur within a year of the expiration of the governor's term, a special election shall be called immediately to choose an executive. Both Futrell and Oldham declare they will call an election.

SEVEN YEARS OF HIGH MEAT AHEAD

SHORTAGE IS BLAMED

Chicago, March 14.—Arthur G. Leonard, president of the Union Stock Yards company, sent the following reply yesterday to a telegraphic inquiry from Mrs. Julian Heath, president of the National Housewives' league, as to the cause for increase in the price of meats throughout the country. "For the period since Jan. 1, as compared with the same period of 1912, there has been a total decrease in the receipts at Chicago of 646,000 meat animals of every type amounting to an aggregate of 2,000,000 pounds."

Explaining the shortage further Mr. Leonard said that the high prices are due to the shortage, and the shortage is due largely to the wiping out of a large amount of the range country and its division into smaller farms. He said the shortage had been increasing for the last seven years and that it would take a similar period to build up the cattle raising industry so that any material reduction in prices would be possible.

"During the last year the decrease in the supply has amounted to one pound of meat per capita each month," he said.

UNSATISFACTORY, SAY WOMEN.

Housewives' League Dispute Leonard's Explanation.

New York, March 14.—The National Housewives' league does not accept as satisfactory the reply which it received from President Leonard, of the Union Stock Yards company in Chicago, as the shortage of the cattle as an explanation of high prices.

"All the wholesalers and retailers," said Mrs. Julian Heath, president of the league, "declare that even if there were a great shortage in cattle the retail demand for meat at the present time is so small that the decrease in supply would not raise the prices to their present height." Mrs. Heath has telegraphed Mr. Leonard's figures on the shortage on cattle to the bureau of animal industry in Washington for verification.

MAY WANTED TO SLEEP.

Moves Into Another Room as Firemen Fight Blaze In His Own.

Indianapolis, March 14.—H. O. May, of Louisville, Ky., arrived today and registered at the Lorraine hotel. A few minutes later he decided to smoke and then his room became the objective point of the downtown fire department. May said while he was puffing on his pipe the mattress of his bed was set on fire in some manner. While the firemen were putting out the blaze May retired to an adjoining room and went to sleep. The fire was confined to the mattress.

DEATH COMES TO PROF. A. RAGER

For Seventeen Years He Was Organist at St. Mary's Church.

VERY WIDELY KNOWN

Professor Adalbert Rager, aged fifty-eight years, for more than seventeen years organist at St. Mary's Catholic church, died at 10 o'clock this morning at the family residence, 901 Madison street. Death followed a stroke of paralysis suffered about 6 o'clock this morning. Professor Rager had been in poor health since Christmas and had been bedfast since last Monday, but until this morning his condition was not regarded as serious.

PROF. ADALBERT RAGER, Former Organist at St. Mary's Catholic Church, Dies.

Six years ago Professor Rager became partially deaf and was forced by illness to retire as organist. Shortly after that time he suffered a nervous breakdown. About Christmas other complications developed and he gradually grew worse. Professor Rager was born in Bavaria, Germany, November 11, 1854, and came to this country thirty-nine years ago. He went to Milwaukee and presided for a number of years as organist at the Church of the Holy Name. Thirty-five years ago, while still in Milwaukee, he was married to Anna Kammerer, the ceremony having been sol-

GIFT CANE LOADED WITH A PETITION FOR OFFICE.

Washington, March 14.—President Wilson today found himself reading an application for a postmastership in spite of his rule not to consider applications from minor offices in person. W. T. Hepner, of Lompac, Cal., sent to the president a cane which did not look as if it were loaded but when the president unscrewed its top he found that Hepner had inclosed a request that a friend be appointed postmaster at Lompac. The president referred the application to the postmaster general.

JUDGE WILL USE PERSONAL FUNDS

Eggeman Will Effect Capture of Men Who Neglect Families.

USELESS TO SKIP OUT

Judge John W. Eggeman, of the Allen circuit court, stated today in suspending a penitentiary sentence on Charles Martin, that it will be useless for men who neglect to support their children and wives to leave the state after they have been convicted and sentence suspended, as he will draw upon his personal funds for the money to have them returned to his court and thence to state prison.

In common with other counties in Indiana, Allen has no fund to be drawn upon for the purpose of securing the arrest outside of the state of persons wanted under indictments or affidavits charging them with crime or for the apprehension of persons let go under suspensions of their sentences.

If it were not for the intervention of Judge Eggeman it would be an easy matter for Martin or any of the other men convicted and sentenced to get outside the jurisdiction of the court and laugh at the sentence imposed by the judge.

Martin was convicted some time ago and sent back to jail to give him an opportunity to furnish bond to support his children. He was unable to do this and the judge decided to give him another chance in face of the fact that he had not taken advantage of the others given him.

"There will be no argument in the matter," said the judge. "If you are brought in here again. You will be sent to prison without another chance. You are to keep out of the saloons and you are to make your payments right on time. A day or two after the regular time will not satisfy this court. You must pay promptly. Don't think for a minute you can leave the state and avoid arrest, because if you do I will use my own private funds and get you back into this court and send you to prison. You may go now."

SHANK IS GOING INTO VAUDEVILLE

Indianapolis Mayor Signs Contract Calling for $500 Per Week.

IN MONOLOGUE ACT

Indianapolis, Ind., March 14.—Beginning the first of next year, Mayor Samuel Lewis Shank, of this city, will do his "potato selling" and "mayoring" from a vaudeville stage. The mayor today signed a contract with a large vaudeville circuit to a monologue at $500 a week.

The mayor, who won world-wide fame in his efforts to reduce the high cost of living by buying carloads of potatoes and other produce and selling them on the city market himself at cost price, will complete his four-year term on January 1 next. He was a candidate for the nomination of governor before the republican state convention, but was defeated.

"Since I couldn't get to be governor," said Mayor Shank, "I guess going on the stage is the next best thing."

Mayor Shank's first vaudeville engagement will be in Indianapolis.

FOUR ARE DEAD; THIRTY INJURED

Fatal Rear-End Collision on Union Pacific Near Gothenberg, Neb.

IN EARLY MORNING

Omaha, Neb., March 14.—Union Pacific passenger train No. 12, known as the Colorado Special, ran into the rear of No. 4, the Atlantic Express early today near Gothenberg, Neb., killing four persons and injuring thirty more, according to advices reaching here.

The known dead are:

Edmund R. Oosterhault, Salamanca, N. Y., traveling salesman.

Mr. and Mrs. August Meyers, Wall Lake, Iowa.

Mrs. Edith Hoon Stockwell, Cheyenne.

Mrs. Stockwell was the wife of Sergeant Stockwell, of the fourth field artillery.

MIRROR TO CONSOLE LION.

Animal in Cleveland Zoo Dying of Grief at Loss of Mate.

Cleveland, Ohio, March 14. To console Columbus, the big lion in the Brookside zoo for the loss of his mate, park officials will place a mirror in the side of his cage so that he will gaze at the reflection of his neighbor, the leopard, and believe a new companion has been sent to cheer him. The investigation of a committee showed that the recent death of the mate of Columbus was not caused by carelessness, but on the advice of Dr. T. Winugate Todd, a prominent local surgeon and professor, the deception will have to be practiced on Columbus to prevent him from dying from grief over the loss of his mate.

ADDS UP TO VAST TOTAL

Appropriations by Recent Congress Far Above Billion Mark.

FITZGERALD SEEKS TO BLAME MR. TAFT

Says Indifference Misled Congress as to Financial Condition.

Washington, March 14.—Appropriations of the last session of congress, including the sundry civil and the Indian appropriation bills which failed at the last moment but which are to be put through at the coming extra session, aggregated $1,098,647,960. The annual statements given out today by Chairman Fitzgerald, of the appropriations committee, and by former Speaker Cannon for the republicans agree on that total.

Mr. Cannon adds, however, that in addition to that amount, contracts authorized for public works involve further expenditures of $76,950,174. Chairman Fitzgerald attributed the increase to development of the country, increased government activity and constant pressure to divert burdens to the federal treasury.

Seeks to Blame Taft.

"The indifference of the administration," said Mr. Fitzgerald, "readily misled congress as to the country's financial condition. The report of the secretary of the treasury disclosed an anticipated deficit of $22,500,203, but congress never received from the president the information which the statute directed him to furnish."

Mr. Cannon, analyzing the figures, declared the appropriations made and obligations created during the entire Sixty-second congress aggregated $2,238,470,990, an excess of almost $87,000,000 over the previous republican congress, and that the probable deficit in the revenues for 1914 will be $183,821,628.

What Uncle Joe Says.

"All performances of republican houses," added the former speaker, "fall into utter insignificance in contrast with what the democratic house of the Sixty-second congress has accomplished in emptying the treasury and piling up obligations."

House Chamber Transformed.

Remodeling of the house chamber, the substitution of benches for desks to accommodate the largely augmented membership, has progressed rapidly and the transformation that will make the lower house of congress look much like the British house of commons will be completed late next week. There will be a place for papers and other documents in wooden pockets under the benches. Tables to be placed in the clear space before the speaker's rostrum will be provided for members in charge of pending measures.

Given Two Standards.

The white house today has possession of both the pennant bearing the coat of arms of the United States, which adorned the reading desk on which President Wilson took the oath of office and the flag that floated above the capitol nearest to the historic spot. The two standards were produced by Superintendent of the Capitol Elliott Woods on the request of the executive office. The penant is a comparatively small streamer. The flag, however, is of the regulation wool bunting and is eight feet, 11 inches wide and seventeen feet long. It was flung forth for the

Baseballitis in the Railroad Offices

THE BASEBALL has taken possession of the railroad offices. Two of the most serious cases reported are those contracted by Art. Foellinger and Peter Levy, shop clerks in the department of J. H. Hobrock, chief shop clerk of the Pennsylvania. The first symptoms were manifested Tuesday of this week, as the germs were wafted through the open window on the gentle spring zephyr.

"Let's dig up a ball somewhere," suggested Art to Peter, "and some gloves, and play catch for a little while today noon."

Both proceeded to dig, but none of the desired articles were found. So they combined their finances and used a portion of the noon hour to purchase a ball and a pair of gloves. It was arranged then, that each should bring his dinner on Wednesday and spend the spare time in the exercise of playing catch. Everything went well until Art missed the ball and it went bounding back of him and rolled down the street. A small dog, which they hadn't noticed before, was seen to be chasing the ball. His hot pursuit allowed him to overtake it and he grabbed it in his mouth. He turned and gave one look at Mr. Foellinger and then proceeded to run harder than ever, still holding the ball in his mouth. Art called to the dog to stop, but the little fellow didn't seem to understand English because he speeded up all the harder. For four squares, Mr. Foelinger chased the dog, and at the end of the courses was no nearer to the sprightly animal than when he started. He had to give up the race, and turned back toward the office all out of breath and mopping sweat industriously, yet wearily.

Quite a number of the other boys were awaiting him when he got back.

Chased the dog.

"Blast the luck!" said Art. "I wish there was some way of keeping these stray dogs away when people want to exercise—when, in fact they need exercise as bad as we do. And another thing—I hate to get all wrought up; I hate to get mad, but when a dog will——"

"What kind of a dog was it?" asked Fred Walleis.

"Why, it was a little white dog with brown spots on his head and——"

"Anything like this one?" pointing at Mr. Foelinger's feet.

There stood the dog, holding up the ball in his mouth and telling everybody as plainly as he could that he, also, had the baseball fever, and was only playing.

Episcopal Missionary Will Seek to Reach Its Summit.

Fairbanks, Alaska, March 14.—Archdeacon Hudson Stuck, an Episcopal missionary, left Fairbanks yesterday with three companions to make an attempt to reach the summit of Mount McKinley. Mr. Stuck is taking a complete outfit, including scientific equipment with which to make observations and establish the exact height of the great peak, which is approximately 20,500 feet. He expects to reach the summit about May 1.

The party will follow the route over which Thomas Lloyd, of Fairbanks, made the first ascent in 1910, and which was followed by Prof. Herschel Parker, of New York, and Belmore Brown, of Tacoma, last year when they came within 200 feet of the summit only to be driven back by a terrific snow storm.

At Spring Bay, Ill., fifty men and women who were attending a church service were thrown into a panic when the steeple of the structure fell. Charles Guibin, a farmer near Jacksonville, died from injuries received when a large tree was blown down and struck his house.

At Whitehall a pedestrian was blown from a sidewalk and severely injured. A skating rink was demolished. Three persons were injured and considerable damage done to property near Jerseyville. Heavy damage to crops was reported in Peoria, Woodford and Tazwell counties.

HUNDREDS ARE HOMELESS.

Five Dead in Madison and Henderson Counties, Tenn.

Memphis, Tenn., March 14.—Latest reports received here today from the storm swept sections of Madison and Henderson counties do not add to the list of dead. Five were killed and over one hundred rendered homeless.

At Lexington between seventy-five and one hundred houses were practically demolished. The dead: Mrs. Thorne and Green Threadgill, Lexington, Tenn. Three small children of Hubert Brown, Huron, Tenn.

Telegraphic and telephone communication is still cut off between Jackson and Lexington. It is not believed that any further casualties occurred. The small towns of Camden, Timberlake, Huron, Life and Sharon suffered property loss.

Some Important Conferences.

President Wilson had a number of important conferences planned for today.

Representative Jones, of Virgina, had an engagement to introduce his colleague, Representative Saunders, but he expected to take up with the president the question of Philippine independence, for which he has a bill pending in the house.

Other names on the president's program were: Representative A. Mitchell Palmer, of Pennsylvania, chairman of the democratic caucus; Joseph E. Davies, of Wisconsin, secretary of the democratic national committee, and Secretary of State Bryan, who leaves today on a ten days' trip to his home in Lincoln, Neb.

The president will wind up the day's conferences at 8 o'clock when he is scheduled to meet Senator LaFollette. This will be the president's first consultation with a member of the progressive republican wing.

Lad Sends Hrsiotci Souvenir.

Of the many souvenirs that have found their way to the white house, President Wilson was especially pleased today with a piece of water soaked wood which came in the mail.

George Starstay, 13, of Erie, Pa., sent it with an account of how he had got the piece of the hulk of the Nigara, one of the ships in Commodore Perry's fleet a century ago. Young Starstay told in detail how he had argued with the guards who had kept souvenir hunters away. Starstay said he had great difficulty in keeping his secret "from the rest of the kids." "I wouldn't tell them," he wrote, "for fear they would take it away, or want to divvy up. No one knows that I am sending this to you. It will surprise mother and father when I receive your answer." The president sent a letter of appreciation.

Will Investigate Charges.

The senate committee on privileges and elections, which conducted the two investigations into the election of William Lorimer, of Illinois, today began an inquiry into the charges made yesterday by Senator Gore that Carl A. Loeffler, assistant doorkeeper of the senate, had been responsible for the disappearance of the much discussed Holstlaw certificate of deposit which figured in the celebrated case.

Chairman Dillingham asked Senator Gore, Mr. Loeffler and the young page from whom Senator Gore got his information to appear before the committee. Mr. Loeffler was re-elected by a large majority, after members of the senate had expressed their confidence in his innocence.

Senator Gore said he had no other evidence than the statement of the senate page, that he had given the paper to Mr. Loeffler and had not afterward seen it.

Terre Haute, Ind., March 14.—Primaries for the selection of committeemen in the reorganization of the political parties resulted in the overthrow of Donn M. Roberts, county chairman of the democratic party. Roberts will go into the city convention today with but fourteen votes against forty-one of the opposition, of which John E. Lamb is the recognized leader. Serious disorder marked the primaries in several voting places.

Mrs. John Mathew, of 620 East Jefferson street, was removed to Hope hospital late yesterday for medical treatment.

REGULAR BUDGET MEASURE SIGNED

Governor Ralston Affixes Signature to Regular Appropriations.

SOME OTHERS SIGNED

Indianapolis, Ind., March 14.—With the signature of Governor Ralston affixed yesterday the regular appropriation bill of the 1913 session of the Indiana legislature became the law, and $7,094,000, in round numbers, was put at the disposal of the state of Indiana for the ensuing two years for general or regular purposes, the making of the state house pay roll, the maintenance of the state institutions and other expenditures for which provisions are made as a regular thing.

In addition to the regular appropriations carried in the bill signed yesterday are the specific appropriations of more than $1,500,000, signed on Tuesday by the governor.

Combined, the two appropriation bills, according to a statement by Auditor of State W. H. O'Brien, call for some $300,000 or $350,000 more than the income of the state for the next two years, under the old tax levy. As the new increased tax levy was signed some days ago, providing for an addition to the state's income of something like $2,500,000 for the next two years, most of the money to go to the benevolent and penal institutions and the three state schools, and as the legislature also enacted a law enabling the state board of finance to borrow money on short time to bridge gaps, the administration feels that fiscal arrangements have been made in a way to provide for all contingencies, including the salary increases and the many new salaries provided for this year under various laws.

Many Incheases Survive.

In the regular appropriation bill there are many salary increases, and, as a rule, the institutions are given the sums asked for. Where not provided for in the appropriation bills the institutions are cared for in the new tax levy increase law.

Among the salary increases in the regular appropriation bill which survived the strife between the house and senate were the state superintendent of public instruction, raised from $3,500 a year to $6,000 a year, along with three deputies or clerks in his office, raised an aggregate of $1,200 a year; the state oil inspector, increased from $2,500 a year to $3,600 a year, increases for three clerks in the secretary of state's office, executive clerk in the governor's office raised from $900 a year to $1,200 a year, clerk of the printing board, from $1,500 a year to $2,500 a year; clerk in treasurer's office, clerk hire for oil inspector, assistant to bank clerk in auditor's office, stenographers and clerks to supreme court judges, pay of state house janitors, pay of assistants to state house engineer, pay of employes at the monument and clerk of the board of forestry.

Other Bills Signed.

In addition to the regular appropriation bill the governor yesterday signed the Hauck bill requiring loan and safety deposit companies to carry at least 15 per cent. of their deposits as a surplus and to make five reports a year to the auditor of state; the Ratts bill providing that unclaimed money found upon the body of a dead person shall go to the common school fund; the White bill enabling the state board of resignation and examination of nurses to pay its secretary more than $500 a year; the Mitchell bill for the killing of black birds in cities and towns; the Fitzer bill to enable the city schools of Logansport to sell the old high school at an appraised valuation; the Hawkins bill to enable voluntary associations to take possession of cemeteries, and the Hughes bill to regulate the speed of motor boats on the lakes and rivers of the state.

"CASCARETS" MAKE YOU FEEL GREAT

Gently cleanse your liver and sluggish bowels while you sleep.

Sick headache, biliousness, dizziness, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath—always trace them to torpid liver, delayed fermenting food in the bowels or sour, gassy stomach.

Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Salts, cathartic pills, oil and purgative waters force a passageway for a day or two—yes—but they don't take the poisons out and have no effect upon the liver or stomach.

Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret tonight will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels clean and regular for months.—Adv.

"Too Much Work is Foolish," She Says, But Likes Acting in Movies.

MISS LILLIAN WALKER.

Are "movie" actresses fond of stunning clothes like the actress of the speaking stage seems to be?

The question has been asked several times by women and girls who frequent the "movie" theaters and know the different actors and actresses by name.

Yes, certainly they like nice clothes. And, what's more, they wear nice ones, too.

There's isn't a better example of the well-dressed "movie" maid than Miss Lillian Walker.

She's a stunning young girl; a real blonde with dark eyes and pink and white cheeks.

She's not statuesque by any means. She is well groomed. Strange to say, Miss Walker is the ingenue. But she often plays leads when the lead requires an ingenue type.

"Work is fine," says pretty Lillian, "but too much work is foolish."

So, if the director sees fit to put some other girl into a good part now and then and give her a rest, she doesn't sulk nor sorrow. Instead, she goes home and reads or writes or sews or goes to the matinee or does some one of the other things girls like to do for a change when there isn't a thing they just must do.

STREET URCHIN HAS RAPID RISE

Italian Boy Begins Successful Career as Newspaper Salesman.

AND IS NOW BANKER

Pittsfield, Mass., March 14.—The story of Charles Genovese, Italian banker and manager of an extensive steamship agency in this city, and of his rise from street gamin to money-changer and banker, is one of the many stories of modern pioneers in New England. It gives an intimate glimpse of the inspiration that stimulates the emigrant from the old country and its results.

Charles Genovese was born in Italy, the son of an ambitious man who emigrated to this country when Charles was eight years old. Charles was transplanted from the sunny slopes of Senta, in Campania, to the bleak shadows of Beacon hill, Boston, where he grew up as a boy amid the bustle of an American city and found that the summer sun, while it might bear a faint resemblance to the sun whic shone in the public square of his native town, was not conducive to blissful idleness. Consequently Charles got busy at an early age. How busy he got may be gathered from the face that in seventeen years his career has embraced that of newsboy, boot-proprietor of a dozen steamship ticket agencies and banker.

Works But Goes to School.

Charles Genovese was o streeth mtah

Charles Genovese was a street gamin but he was not an idler at any time in his career. When he was old enough to go on the street he was also old enough to carry a bundle of papers under one arm and a bootblack's kit strapped under the other. He started right in to operate on the department store principle that if he could not sell a customer one thing he could sell him another; if not a newspaper, a shine, both being necessities in these days.

And when Charles was old enough to carry papers and a shine kit, he was also old enough to go to school. He arose at four o'clock in the morning, hustled out on the street with his papers and shine kit and did a rushing business until school time, dropping his trade to enter the doors of the public school and picking it up again as soon as study hours had passed.

From late afternoon until late at night he plied his double trade and picked up pennies and nickles with an alacrity which foreboded commercial success at the outset. He saved at this work enough money actually to buy a kit for a stationary boot-blacking stand in Tremont street, Boston, and built up a business whic henabled him to clear $800 when he sold out.

Goes to Berkshires.

This was his start in business on a large scale and it did not turn his head. He went to work for another man for a few weeks as an expert shiner, and waited for a new opening. It came in the knowledge that in the heart of the Berkshires was a city to which thousands from the eastern part of the state and from New York, migrated every summer. Many of these Charles had seen in his business in Boston and had shined their shoes. Competition was keen in The Hub, and Charles picked up his outfit and came to Pittsfield, where he opened an establishmnt which proved a success from the start.

Indeed it was so great a success that Charles saw that the bootblacking business in western Massachusetts was a golden opportunity if handled largely. He obtained the bootblacking privileges in the stations along the line of the Boston and Albany railroad from Westfield, Mass., to Chatham, N. Y., which he later sold, one at a time, at a fair profit. At the same time he continued his business in this city, a shine parlor connected with a barber shop in the Berkshire Life Insurance building, and, with the perception with which he was born and which had been sharpened by his boyhood experiences, he branched out into the business of repairing the shoes he had been shining.

Grasping the opportunity offered by his ability to speak two languages, his mother tongue and the English, he began selling tickets to his fellow countrymen for their annual trips to their native soil. He knew that, yearly, many hundreds of Italians leave the United States for Italy, either to remain there, having amassed enough in this country to content them or to make a visit of weeks or months. In fact he found that even in this comparatively small city, with its Italian colony, there was a sizeable annual migration and there even grew up competition to his agency.

To enlarge his business and add a feature which had not been exploited in this city before, he opened a money exchange whereby the money of the old country could be exchanged for American money and, for those who were sailing for home, where American money could be transmuted into the coin of the realm across the sea. Customers who bought steamship tickets at the Genovese steamship agency found it the easiest thing in the world to have their American money changed for them at the "Banca Genovese" was and is still the money exchange bank, for it was also a place of deposit as well as of exchange, and later became the place where most of the 5,000 Italians in this city went to get loans.

In the business of exchange Mr. Genovese found there was a demand for French money as well as Italian, and he added this branch to his industry. He went into business in one side of a basement store in West street, just below the Pittsfield National bank. The contrast was great, but it did not detract from the advantages it offered, for the "Banca Geovese" was and is still the sole Italian bank in the city. His steamship agency business grew apace and still is growing.

Election Results Scared Italians.

In 1911 Charles Genovese sold more than 1,000 passages to Europe, mostly to Italy, and last year this was doubled. The scare of a democratic administration was responsible largely for this rush, for the Italians feared another situation like that og 1893, and many of them withdrew their money from "Banca Genoves and other banks in this city. The migration was, however, a blessing as well as a loss to Charles Genovese. He made money on his steamship agency, but his coffers were depleted to some extent by the withdrawal of money. Here the wisdom of his combination of agency and bank was evident.

Prosperity continues to shine on the former street gamin. He will move soon from his little undeground bank to more commodious and airer quarters in Fenn street, more contrally located and on the ground floor, where there is room for two windows full of steamship advertisements and room for extensve counters for the bank and the agency.

Acts as Interpreter.

Although engaged in a money making business among his own people here, Mr. Genovese has been much in demand as an interpreter. For some time he has been court interpreter in the district court, and in the recent "white slave" case, in which two of his countrymen were charged with a crime under federal laws, he acted as interpreter when almost two dozen Italians, brought as witnesses from Hartford, Conn., were examined. Work has been his mastering passion. He attributes his success to the ancient rule of "sticking to his last."

"Life is too short," he says, in his original manner, "to while away time foolishly and I made money when others were squandering their time. Once in a while I went to shows, moving pictures and the like, but I was not in the habit of doing these things. I needed recreation and I took it, but I didn't hang around places."

The fact that in a little more than two decades in this country he has achieved his present success speaks well for his industry. Mr. Genovese is now twenty-nine years of age and still industrious.

One firm in the British isles pays about $703,000 a year for advertising and another $486,000. A third issues a trade catalogue at the cost of $246,000 every year.

Man's taste in toys has not changed much throughout the ages. Some of the dolls of ancient Egypt had movable arms and even strings of mud beads to represent hair. Ancient Egypt had had its toy animals, its wooden calves and porcelain elephants with riders on their backs. Jointed dolls worked by strings were favorite toys with the children of Greece and Rome, who also played with model furniture balls and tops.

Ireland's population remained almost stationary in 1912.

Direct Election of Senators

Triumph of the protracted effort for direct election of United States senators by the people at a regular election instead of their choice by the state legislatures, may come into full fruition within the next two weeks. Thirty-one states have already ratified the proposed amendment to the national constitution, and but five more are needed to make it an integral part of the federal constitution. In four states one or the other of the legislative houses has already taken favorable action, and at least two others which have not yet spoken are fully expected to ratify the amendent during sessions now in progress. It is a singular fact that as yet but one state—Georgia—has rejected the amendment.

In addition to providing for the fullest possible expression of popular will, the amendment will put forever at an end the protracted senatorial deadlocks which frequently ensue in state legislatures. But a day or two ago New Hampshire was able to break a legislative deadlock which had held since January 19, while the Illinois tangle nearer home has come more closely under local attention. The fact that the ratification of the amendment is so near injects another feature into the Illinois case, for unless the legislature there can make a selection before the new law becomes operative, the privilege will be transferred to the people and will operate as a bar against further action along this line by the legislature. In Indiana the new method will doubtless see its first use in the popular selection of a successor to Senator Shively.

The gladsome spring weather we have been enjoying for the past day or two is a tremendous developer of optimism. Along one line of development it has already gone to the extreme of a confident opinion that the Fort Wayne garbage crematory, with repairs recently completed, is going to be amply adequate to take care of all demands that are likely to be made on it during the coming summer season.

Postmaster General Burleson's idea that third and fourth-class postmasterships be reopened and placed on the basis of merit as determined by a civil service examination, with present incumbents eligible to take the examination, indicates a disposition to at least give those who are now writing P. M. after their signatures a sportman's chance to stay on the payroll.

The forethought in hunting up friends and bidding them farewell before he starts is certainly admirable upon the part of the aeronaut who is to make a new attempt to cross the Atlantic in a balloon. Still, on more reflection, Walter Wellman turned up again.

Meanwhile, if you have any ambitions toward distinction as a candidate for the mayoralty, do not delay too long in getting into the list of those "mentioned." After awhile the running may not be so good as now when it is a free-for-all field.

In the multiplicity of other issues confronting the Wilson administration, who could have foreseen the grave problem involving Secretary Redfield's whiskers which has come like a bolt from the blue.

THE CONSULAR SERVICE.

(Mack's National Monthly.)

Small reward, if, indeed any, by way of appointment to the consular service of the United States awaits those democrats who have labored long and faithfully for the success and the triumph of its principles. This will not be the fault of President Wilson nor of any of his advisers, but is the result of a system which has been in process of development for almost twenty years.

After nearly all of the important positions in the consular service—numbering a few more than three hundred, exclusive of minor clerical positions in consulates—have been filled by republicans appointed by republican presidents during the last sixteen years, the service has, during the last few years, undergone a change which to all intents and purposes has made it not unlike that of other branches of the civil establishments. Consuls-general and consuls, of whom there are fifty-eight of the former and two hundred and forty-six of the latter, are named by the president for no fixed terms, and under the existing order of things are removed only for cause. As in olden days, "few die and none resign." Hence, with the induction of a democratic president into office he finds almost every consular place filled by a republican who is safe in his position, his appointment practically amounting to a life tenure, and the only change to which he is subject is a transfer from one post to another.

THE BASIS OF POWER.

(Pittsburg Dispatch.)

Congressman McCall, in a little parting address at the adjournment of congress, expressed the opinion that the house might, if its members realized their power, become a more important factor in legislation than it is. He intimated that the constitutional functions granted to it and its democratic composition made it a question for the members to decide whether or not it could not be made the dominating factor.

There is no doubt on this point, so far as the constitutional theory is concerned. The house is given that exclusive right on which the British house of commons has founded its ability to support or defeat cabinets. That is the exclusive right to originate appropriations. Let the majority of the house once become so united upon a given issue that it can say to the senate or president, "Do this, or you shall have no appropriations," and the other branches of government must yield to it. Of course the house would need to have the support of the people in its stand or its power would be transitory.

But the fact is that the majority of the house is swayed by patronage and pork, and the senate, by an extraconstitutional theory, has gained more control over those fat things than the house. The power remains, though, inert, and may some time be called into action.

MAKING BOTH ENDS MEET.

(Kansas City Times.)

The United States is the only important government that makes no systematic attempt to make both ends meet. One committee of the house has charge of the raising of money. A dozen other committees have charge of its expenditure. Each committee tries to get as large appropriations as possible for the objects in which it is interested. Nobody connected with the expenditure of funds is directly concerned with keeping down expenses. That is one reason why appropriations run wild.

Another reason is because any member of congress is permitted to introduce pension bills or other measures for the expenditure of money. In the house of commons there long has been a standing order that appropriation bills can be introduced only by the government, which thus is made directly responsible for expenditures. If there is extravagance the nation knows just whom to blame.

This country is bound to come eventually to a budget. This means simply that some one body will decide on the amount of revenue to be raised each year and on the way in which this revenue shall be spent.

PRESS OPINIONS OF BUFFALO NICKEL.

"Improvement Over Old."

Dayton Herald: "To us the new nickel is a vast improvement over the old one in attractiveness and artistic merit. It is a beautiful example of the designer's highest art. What if the head of the Indian, when turned upside down, does look something like a fat man doubled up in a cramp?"

"Old Ones Popular, Too."

"Beautiful."

New York Tribune: "Various minor flaws are found with the lettering. But the chief objection is unmistakable—the new coin is beautiful. That is the whole story. It lacks utterly the solemn ugliness of the old coin. It does not remotely suggest a brown stone front."

"Crude but Earnest."

Roanoke Times: "Coming to look more closely at the Indian's head on the new to-be-discarded nickel, we seem to discover a crude but earnest attempt to

KOHLER ENTERS STRONG DENIAL

HE GROWS EMPHATIC

Cleveland, O., March 14.—Fifteen minutes after the resumption of his hearing on charges of gross immorality and misconduct in office this afternoon, Fred Kohler, Cleveland's "Golden Rule" chief of police, took the stand to testify in his own defense. He immediately plunged into a vigorous denial of the allegations against him.

A general denial of any improper relations with Mrs. May Schearer which the prosecution has sought to impute to him already had been made by the chief. He has admitted, however, a visit to her home on the night of June 5, 1912, when he found her alone and later was surprised by the return of her husband, Samuel D. Schearer. It is expected that on the stand he will go into detail regarding this visit.

The defense has intimated its intention to prove that Kohler had known Mrs. Schearer from childhood, but had never been in her house prior to the night of June 5, when he went there to counsel with her regarding matters concerning her welfare and in which he was interested as an official; and that he then expected to find her in the company of Mr. Schearer and several other persons.

Marines Rushed to Cuba Employing Time at Target Practice.

Washington, March 14.—The twenty-one hundred marines who were hurriedly rushed from this country to Cuba during the recent Mexican crisis and who are in camp at Guantanamo are displaying remarkable marksmanship as the result of instructions in the use of the new service rifle. An announcement from the navy department today declared the marines were taking great pride in their proficiency and that they were losing no opportunity for target practice on the navy's modern rifle range. Officials of the navy department and the marine corps look for gratifying results from the experience the marines will get during their encampment for the men are being put through a thorough course of landing and field maneuvers in conjunction with the small arms practice.

DEVISE NEW ANNOYANCE.

Suffragettes Remove Names From London Gateposts.

London, March 14.—The latest exploit of the militant suffragettes in London is the obliteration of names on the gate posts of houses in the residence streets. Armed with pots of tar and brushes they raided the Richmond district early today, disfiguring many houses.

London houses are distinguished solely by names, numbers not being used. The suffragettes' act makes the identification of a particular house impossible and is sure to cause extreme annoyance.

The window smashing campaign also was resumed this morning in the jewelers' district in Bond street and in Holborn. The police arrested several women.

Miss Olive Hockin, arrested yesterday for attempting to set fire to a pavilion in Roehampton golf links, was released today on bail. She signed an agreement to abstain from militancy pending her trial.

ASSAILS CHILD LABOR AS INFAMY

Cradles Plucked to Aid Debased Commercialism, Says Patterson.

WAGE SCALE VIEWS

Philadelphia, March 14. "The outstanding infamy of certain of our modern industries is the linking to the bells of factories and mills of two million children," was the declaration made today by William B. Patterson, chief of the department of social and industrial justice of the progressive league. He was the principal speaker at the morning session of the progressive conference. After denouncing industries that "thrive upon the plucking of cradles and kindergartens in the interest of their debased the subject of women's wages and said:

"The element of justice seems to find little place in the principle, or the lack thereof, that governs the wage scales of women. In department stores the average pay is $6.98 for those who live at home and $7.98 for those who are 'adrift.' In the factories the average of $6.40 and $6.78, respectively.

"While it is unjust to charge that the under payment of women is the chief cause if their lapse from virtue, yet there are types of modern business that are, beyond question, measurable factors in the commercialization of vice. It takes from $750 to $900 to maintain a husband, wife and three children in most American cities. Three-fourths of the adult male workers of the country receive less than $750 yearly."

TURKS REPULSE BESIEGERS.

Drive Back Desperate Attack on Fortress of Adrianople.

London, March 14.—A fierce but unsuccessful assault was made on the south front of the Turkish fortress of Adrianople last night. According to a dispatch from Constantinople, the besieging Bulgarians and Servians sustained heavy losses and were eventually repulsed all along the line.

NEW STAFFS FOR BOY SCOUTS.

Washington Scout Commissioner Recommends Stronger Design.

Washington, March 14.—Because so many light staffs broke in the hands of the Boy Scouts who aided the police to push back the crowds that threatened the suffragist parade March 3, Scout Commissioner Martin has recommended also that the staves be three cornered, with one side marked in feet and inches, and a second with the metric system of measurement. He would leave the remaining side blank, so that the owner of the staff might burn his name thereon. He is hopeful that reform will be ordered.

During the suffragist parade the boys did excellent work in controlling the pressing throngs and used their staffs as barriers with good effect. Resolutions praising their efforts have been adopted by suffragist organizations in many parts of the country.

SHOT WITHOUT TRIAL.

Three Hundred Albanians Put to Death by Servian Troops.

Frankfort on the Main, Germany, March 14. Three hundred Albanian inhabitants of Liuma in the Turkish province of Kossovo were shot without trial by Servian troops yesterday, according to a dispatch from Uskup to the Frankfort Gazette today.

"The inhabitants of the district totalled 400," the dispatch says. "They were unarmed peasants and did not follow the example of the rest of the Albanians in fleeing to the mountains.

"They were captured by a column of servian troops, who, after shooting three hundred of them, brought the surviving one hundred prisoners to Prisrend, the capital of the province."

NEW EQUAL SUFFRAGE BILL.

Women to Seek Right to Vote for Members of Congress.

Washington, March 14.—Recent activity on the part of leaders at national suffrage headquarters was explained today by the announcement that the legislative committee was at work on the preparation of a bill to be presented to the incoming congress granting to women the right to vote for members of congress. It was acknowledged that little hope was entertained that such a bill would pass but the leaders expect the "cause" to profit through the agitation they expect will follow whatever action congress may take. Plans are being mapped out, it was declared, for a vigorous campaign in Michigan when the people of the state voted on the question of universal suffrage.

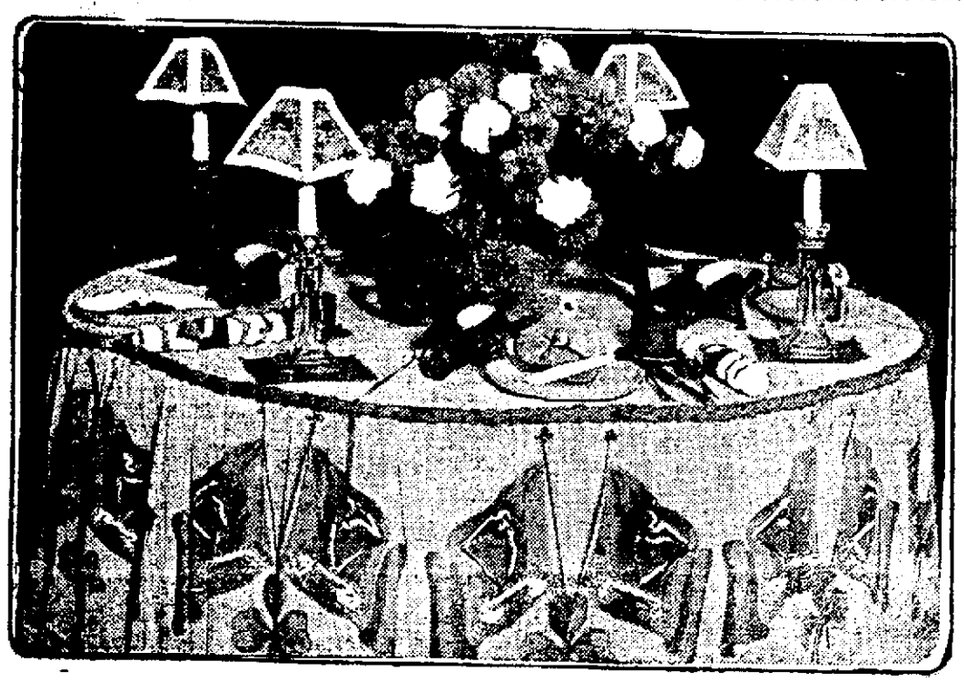
ST. PATRICK'S DAY IN THE DINING ROOM.

(By Caroline Coe.)



St. Patrick's day in our house for years has been a fete day.

When my youngest hopeful had been in school about two years he came home one day with a strained, tired look on his little face.

I said "What's the trouble, dear?"

"Well," said he, "I've had a fearful day! Teacher gave us such big words to talk about."

"What were some of them?" I asked.

He said: "One was nationality. Teach. asked us each to tell our nationality and I had to tell her 'Irish,' and I was never so ashamed in my life—all the others were German, you see!"

I took the lesson to heart and a few days later I said:

"Sunshine, I want to tell you about this nationality question. I'll give your German father credit for your thrift and health, but do you notice you can always give back everyone a quick answer? Well, son, that's the Irish in you."

He looked up into my face and said, "Oh, is it? Well, Irish isn't so bad after all!"

Ever since that time we have tried to keep our "nationality green" in the minds of the children by having a little dinner for them with Irish decorations.

Last year I served a dinner to six of them. While they were waiting for the meal I let them play two little games.

One of them was "The shamrock hunt." I hid a lot of paper shamrocks all over the house and sent the children on a hunt for the four leaf ones. The child that found the most of them was given a green bonbon box filled with green candy.

Just before the children sat down at table I carried about a tray with 12 green things upon it—green leaves, green thread, green pickles, green candy and told them to look them over carefully. After dinner, when they had forgotten all about it, I gave them pencil and paper and told them to write the names of the things they had seen on the tray.

The dinner table must be kept as a surprise and it can be set in this fashion.

For the cover use plain white crepe paper top with an Irish flag crepe flounce. The center piece is a small wheel barrow made of gold card board and filled with green and white carnations. Small wheel barrows at each place hold salted pistachio nuts.

Place cards of shamrock made from green paper with tiny clay pipes tied across them. Green paper hats to hold the candy are at each place, the crystal candle holders rest on green lace paper doilies and the white candles are covered with green shades made of tiny Irish flags. Inside each paper napkin is placed a typical Irish cap, made of green paper. Tiny ribbons, run from the wheel barrow to each place, when pulled, give to each guest a tiny Irish flag.

Cream of Spinach Soup.
Pork Tenderloin Cut in Round Slices.
Peas.
Potato Balls with Parsley.
Parker House Rolls with Bits of Citron stuck on the top.
Green Grape Salad on Lettuce.
Mint Jelly with Whipped Cream.
Angel Food broken into irregular pieces and dipped in green marshmallow icing.
Green and White Mint Wafers.

To make the green marshmallow icing mix together 1 cup of granulated sugar and 2 tablespoons cold water. Place over fire and boil until it spins a hair when dropped from a fork. Beat the white of one egg to a dry froth. Pull three marshmallows into small pieces and put with the eggs just as the sugar is being turned in very slowly. The hot sugar will melt the marshmallow. Beat until cool and smooth. Color bright green with spinach juice. Dip the torn pieces of angel food into this and set aside to cool.

Miss Teresa Danehy, who is to be an April bride, was the honor guest at a beautiful rose party given last evening at the home of Miss Pauline Pohlmeyer, of Fulton street, who was assisted by Miss Georgia Lauer. Pink roses were used in all the rooms and the dining room was particularly attractive with its rose table. A bride's cake occupied the center of the table and from it extended on the cloth, pink ribbons, one leading to each place. At the ends of the ribbons were pink roses, favors for the guests, and Miss Danehy's place was indicated by a corsage bouquet of pink roses, tied with pink tulle. Pink paper candlesticks held pink candles. A tiny pink bag containing rice was given each guest and later in the evening Miss Danehy was showered with the rice. During the evening the guests hemmed towels for the coming bride and after supper she was invited to open a lot of packages and see what pretty gifts her friends had brought to surprise her with. These were present, Misses Borgia Lowry, Ella Wehnert, Marie McMullen, Ellen Laughlin, Frieda Rust, Ruth Duffy, Irene Grimme, Helen Gruber, Irene Lennon, Ludmilla Lauer, Bessie Danehy, Louise Pohlmeyer. HELD ANNUAL MEETING.

Visiting Nurse League Elects Officers and Reports Need of Another Nurse.

The annual meeting of the Visiting Nurse League was held yesterday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Charles H. Worden. The officers of the preceding year were re-elected and are: Mrs. S. B. Bond, president; Mrs. R. A. Mager, vice-president; Mrs. Joseph Lohman, treasurer; Mrs. C. O. Miller, recording secretary; Mrs. C. H. Worden, corresponding secretary; O. E. Mohler, general secretary. Miss Cress is retained as visiting nurse.

The financial condition of the league is the best at this season of the year than ever before in its history. This happy condition is the result of the efforts of the Sophie B. Wright circle of King's Daughters who gave an amateur entertainment and gave the proceeds to the league. The fund is not sufficient, however, to place the league in a position to employ another visiting nurse, and there is a call for that in the city.

Miss Cress reported as many as one hundred and sixty calls a month during the winter. The need for the visiting nurse comes very frequently from working people, wage-earners who have sickness in their families and who are not able to afford the expense of a trained nurse. There are many such families in the city who are able to pay something for the services of a nurse but who cannot pay twenty to thirty dollars a week. The simplest solution of the financial difficulty would be a larger enrollment of members of the league. The annual dues are but twenty-five cents and if a large number of members could be secured and dues were paid promptly the league could always be in a position to render all the assistance it finds in its scope of work.

CELEBRATES ANNIVERSARY.

Dr. Mary A. Whery, of 404 East Berry street, is celebrating the twenty-fifth anniversary of her practice of medicine in Fort Wayne, and also the anniversary of her entry into the profession. Numerous relatives and friends remembering the date have been congratulating the well known physician and she has received many costly and beautiful presents.

AT THE MAJESTIC.

Curtain at 8 O'Clock Tonight at the Majestic.

E. H. Sothern and Julia Marlowe will be seen at the Majestic tonight in a superb production of "Romeo and Juliet."

During the years in which Mr. Sothern and Miss Marlowe have been banded together in artistic partnership they have come to be accounted the foremost actors in the field of classic art on the American stage, and their admirers have grown not alone to esteem them personally, but to take a pride in them for what they have accomplished for Shakespearean art. With their liberality and excellent judgment in the way of productions they have established a standard which it will be exceedingly difficult for others to approach in the future. Tonight they will present one of the most popular plays in their repertoire, and they will be seen in most attractive roles in which they have individually won triumphs. The curtain will rise on the performance at 8 o'clock.

AT THE EMPRESS

The Detroit Free Press of Wednesday had the following to say concerning the show at the Broadway theater in that city, this same bill to come to the Empress theater here for next week: "Four dancing horses are the star attraction at the Broadway theater this week. The horses are the achievement of Ray Thompson, who, though he is the youngest, is perhaps the best known horse trainer now before the public. The horses he has with him are 'Virgil T' and Winfield, two stallions, Burnister, a gelding, and Vena Berard, a mare, a group valued at $30,000. Winfield is the great feature, in that he dances the 'Tango.' Three of the horses are ridden by women and the fourth by Thompson himself. Virgil T does the 'Grizzly Bear' and the 'Turkey Trot' is done by Burnister. The act closes with the stunt of Burnister standing upright on his hind feet while Miss Della Ray, with one knee thrown over the saddle, hangs head down his back. The act is a beautiful one."

The Kinemacolor pictures now being shown at the Empress theater in connection with the current bill of five acts, headed by "Fun in a Boarding House," do not include views of the suffrage parade held in Washington the day preceding the inauguration. It is explained that these pictures were taken, but owing to the difficulties under which the photographer worked, they failed to develop satisfactorily. The pictures do show an intimate view of the Taft-Wilson carriage, the West Point cadets, the Culver black horse troup, and the gorgeous uniforms of the marine bands. The picture is a marvel of coloring.

AT THE TEMPLE

Edna Ang, America's most brilliant and costly star, comes to the Temple next week to head a great bill of vaudeville. This is Miss Aug's first and only vaudeville appearance in this city, she having been late star of "The Silver Wedding," "The Communters" and "The Chorus Lady."

Menlo Moore's "Summer Girls" is a musical medley of summer sports and pastimes. Special scenery and electrical effects are carried, the scene showing Rockaway Beach. This is said to be the best of Menlo Moore's acts, being presented by a capable company of seven musical comedy favorite.

H. T. MacConnell as "President of the 13 Club," has a great comedy offering, chuck full of surprises.

Walter McCullough, with a most capable company, will offer the dramatic hit of the season, entitled "Conscience," which scored a hit all over the Orpheum circuit.

Klass and Bernie, "The Fiddle Up Boys," are real entertainers who know just what the public want.

The original four Mayos, comedy roller skaters, are said to have a very good act, which completes the week's offering.

A POLICEWOMAN'S COSTUME.

In view of Mrs. C. H. P.(Blmont's(campaign for a squad of women police in every city to protect virtue and frown on vice, this costume for a policewoman on duty has been designed by Mrs. Gertrude H. Britton, head of the juvenile protective association, of Chicago.

AT THE LYRIC.

"The Sins of the Father" is the big offering in two reels at the Lyric today. It is a picture well worth seeing and gives a good moral lesson. Tomorrow, "A Regained Reputation" and "Calamity Jane' Detective," will be seen. Next Monday the Lyric announces Captain Scott's Heroic Dash to the South Pole. This is an historical and educational feature that is of more than passing notice.

AT CRYSTAL THEATER.

The talking picture at the Crystal this week have proven a big success and are without doubt the greatest motion picture nevelty ever brought to this city.

AT THE JEFFERSON

The offering at the Jefferson today and night is a Powers—"The Curse"—an exceptionally strong dramatic production teaching a great temperance lesson. The other reel is a Victor, "Love and the Workman," a very high class drama.

Saturday the special feature is a Milano, "The Sins of the Father," in two reels, a very clever picture of a daughter's atonement for her parents' folly. This will be the first time this film is shown in the city.

UNCLE DUD EXPRESSES HIS ADMIRATION FOR THE COLOSSUS OF THE CANAL ZONE.

COLONEL WILSON.

BY UNCLE DUD.

Ancon, Canal Zone.

Of course, the canal is the largest thing on the Zone. Balboa mountain might possibly rank second, but, in a tranquil center, Col. Eugene T. Wilson wins third place.

Colonel Wislon is not exactly large—not precisely huge—he is colossal, cyclopean. Four other gentlemen of corresponding displacement, taken in conjunction with Wilson, would cause a ton of equally solid material to tremble in the balance.

The generous proportions of William Howard Taft dwindle and shrink to mediocre insignificance when viewed within a contiguous range of comparative estimate.

In the rainy season the colonel, it is said, ventures not into the open without high rubber boots, for the reason that the surface pools and casual puddles, for a radius of twenty yards, drain instantly to a sagging depression of the terrestrial crust which follows his ponderous person as persistently as does his shadow.

I am reliably informed that the heavy hoisting machinery from the canal is not infrequently called into special service for the purpose of extricating Colonel Wilson from the wreckage of a public vehicle, the scene of carnage usually occurring at some point between the Panama railroad station and the Tivoli hotel, and in consequence his approach is viewed with consternation and incipient panic by the drivers of these comparatively frail conveyances.

Upon a recent occasion it was deemed expedient to operate upon the colonel for the relief of some internal disorder, and the surgeons, it is stated, became involved in a discussion as to whether it were better to drill or blast in order to most expeditiously reach the remotely located zone of disturbance. The story goes that the portly patient became alarmed as the argument neared a crisis and judiciously recovered.

Another anecdote that has the coloring of probability is related as follows:

While visiting in the states upon a recent occasion Colonel Wilson and a party of friends happened upon a weighing machine with a phonograph attachment, the phonograph orally announcing the alleged weight of each nickel-depositing person. The entire party was composed of men beneficently endowed with fleshy encumbrance, and each in turn mounted the platform and listened to the whining declaration of his personal poundage.

The machine squeaked forth the appalling numerals without a tremor. "Two hundred and fourteen—two hundred and thirty-seven and a half—two hundred and ninety-six—three hundred and twelve," droned the phonograph. The voice was sleepy and unconcerned; it seemed to invite trouble.

The colonel took heart of grace and ventured to rear his elephantine bulk upon the creaking platform. There came an awakening click of protest, followed by an amazing and riotous commotion. "Clicketty, b-rrrrip! Zing! Woof! Bang!" shrieked the weighing contrivance, and then all was silent.

In speechless dismay Colonel Wilson dismounted from the vanquished machine, whose voice he had forever silenced, and waddled pensively away, followed by his sympathetic friends who, for diplomatic reasons, refrained from giving vent to the laugh that was delayed until a less perilous occasion.

For, be it known, the colonel is sensitive about his girth and tonnage, and, furthermore, he is a man whose favorable regard is infinitely worthy of cultivation. He is the subsistence office of the isthmian canal commission, in which capacity he fills one of the most important official positions on the zone.

To say that he is entirely efficient but feebly expresses the degree to which he is achieving the successful administration of his duties, for, in spite of his handicap of excess avoirdupois, Eugene T. Wilson is one of the brainiest and most thoroughly capable men on the job and is rendering a cogent brand of economic but effective service in each of the manifold departments of his office.

Under his direct supervision is listed the commission bakery, the commission laundry, the commission ice plant and the construction of the New Washington at Colon, as well as a multitude of subsidiary responsibilities which come within the broad scope of his official authority and executive ministration.

If his paunch is impressively ponderous, his brain is commendably commensurate, and his activities are guided with a pleasing degree of practical potency and the sort of good sense that makes for quick and permanent results.

ESCAPE OF HUMAN FLY IS MIRACLE

Steel Rocket in Which He is Shot Aloft Bursts in Explosion.

STUNNED AND SINGED

New York, March 14. A steel rocket containing Rodman Law, "human fly," in which he intended to be shot 3,500 feet into the air descending with a parachute, exploded yesterday afternoon after 800 pounds of powder behind it had been set off. Law was hurled twenty-five feet from his seat in the rocket to the ground. His hair and eyebrows were burned off. For ten seconds he was unconscious. Then he got up and looked around.

"Darn that thing," he exclaimed. "I thought I was going up."

Protected by padding and a helmet, Law had crawled into the rocket with his parachute and given the order to set the powder on fire. The fuse sputtered for thirty seconds. There was a burst of flame, a cloud of smoke and a terrific report.

Causes Panic in Crowd.

Hundreds of spectators straining their eyes for a sight of the great rocket hurtling the air saw it leap forward a few feet and burst into fragments.

Panic spread among the spectators. It seemed inconceivable that Law could have escaped being blown to death. Several women became hysterical.

When those who were managing the affair reached the scene they were surprised to find Law struggling on the ground in the midst of the burning scaffolding that had supported the rocket.

His escape was explained by the fact that the head of the rocket, on which he stood shoulder high in a hollow extension, was made of an extra thickness of steel. The rest of the rocket, six feet in length and two and one-half in diameter, was blown to atoms.

Law's purpose in being shot through the air was to give motion picture makers a chance to photograph him.

COMMITTEES TO ELECT OFFICERS

Colerick Slated for Chairman of City Democratic Committee.

NEW COMMITTEEMEN

In keeping with the law requiring city central committees be completely organized within five days after the election of committeemen, plans are being made by progressives, democrats and republicans for meetings to be held Monday night for the purpose of electing chairmen and secretaries.

Attorney Guy Colerick is slated for the chairmanship of the democratic central committee, and friends of the young attorney declare that he has no intention of entering the race for the mayoralty nomination. In all probability Mr. Colerick will preside as chairman of the democrats during the city campaign. Harry P. Lowry, who acted as secretary and manager of the Jefferson drum corps during the campaign last fall, will attempt to land the secretaryship, and believes that his efforts to secure the job will be successful.

Announcement is made today by leading republicans that there are no candidates at this time for the republican chairmanship. It is said that Wilbur G. Carpenter, former city chairman, does not want the place again. Judge Benjamin W. Skelton will likely be elected secretary of the committee and he desires the office.

Progressives Uncertain.

The progressives are also uncertain who will secure the city chairmanship of the new party. Charles M. Preble, county chairman, stated this morning that Harry Ginty and Arthur W. Parry are both likely to bid for the office, but it is desired to divide the honors between these two, making one of them chairman and the other secretary.

The progressives succeeded in selecting only half of their committeemen yesterday, according to C. M. Preble, who was unable today to give a list of the committeemen from fifteen precincts reported unfilled this morning. Some of the voting places, however, had neglected to report, but at the best there will be about ten appointments to make before the meeting Monday night.

Election Was Quiet.

The primaries yesterday for the election of precinct committeemen were quiet, and a very light vote was cast. It develops that not many voters were interested in the selection of committeemen, and it is also understood that in many cases extreme difficulty was found to secure men willing to accept the places, for they are compelled to work entirely without compensation.

Precinct committeemen were elected as follows:

Democratic Committeemen.

THIRTY MEN FOR EARLY PRACTICE

Johnny Nee Will Have an Army to Pick His Vets From.

A DOZEN PITCHERS

Dayton, O., March 14.—Thirty players have been signed to report to Manager Johnny Nee and from these he will pick the club that will represent Dayton in the Central league and that will demonstrate whether or not he is a good judge of players and a capable leader.

Of the thirty players an even dozen are pitchers, nine right handers and three who use the left. Of the twelve, seven have already battled in Dayton colors in Central league games, one had a uniform on for a few minutes last summer and five are total strangers in this community. Otey, Rowan, Compton, Fromholtz, Schulze, Olmstead and Winchell have pitched enough games for the Old Soldiers to be well known in these parts and all of them are in line to battle for their old jobs under Manager Nee. Gosage exercised a little at Highland park one day and was then loaned to Evansville, where he finished the season with Winchell and Barton. The four new men are Corey, Morris, Hewes and Walls. Corey is off the semi-pro lots of Chicago. Morris is from the same neck of the woods as Jack Compton and is recommended by the latter. Hewes starred in independent ball circles around Indianapolis last summer, and Walls is the lad recently secured from New Weston, O. Of the entire collection Otey, Olmstead and Walls are the only southpaws.

Seven players, including Manager Nee, are out for the infield fight. Of this gang four have been seen here previously while three will be strangers in a strange land. Sykes, Nee, Pearce and Katz are the ones who have already introduced themselves, while Leber, Martin and Simms are the new ones. Eight are scheduled to mix things up in the scramble to land the three jobs in the outfield, four of the octette having the word Dayton across their shirts on other occasions. These four are De Haven, Wickland, Harley and Elbel, the last named being groomed for the outfield battle, owing to Earl Sykes having been secured to play first. Mike Donovan spent a year in this league as a member of the Evansville club of 1911, while Shaw, McGrail and Burgess are brand new importations. Behind the bat it is a case of half and half. Armstrong and Barton having played here last season, while Vowters and Warren will make their local debuts when the bell rings for practice the latter part of this month.

Manager Nee is up against some rather stiff propositions in rounding out the Soldier club of 1913. No more than five pitchers will be carried, and picking the best five out of twelve is not what might be termed a cinch. Seven will have to go, but of course it is likely two or more of the discards will be sent to some teams with strings attached. Only two catchers are carried by Central league ball clubs, and with Armstrong having shown his worth here last summer it looks like a case of Warren, Barton and Vowters battling for the vacant job. The infield scrap is going to be another one of those lively affairs as Nee and Sykes are the only ones who seem to be sure of their berths. This leaves Leber, Martin, Pearce, Simms and Katz to fight for the positions held by Bobard and Katz last season. In the garden matters have a similar appearance.

ARNDT IS STILL OUT.

Has Not Landed a Job in Baseball for Next Season.

South Bend, Ind., March 14.—Harry Arndt, former manager of the South Bend Green Stockings, has returned from Indianapolis, where he has been employed for the past two months. Harry will stay here until he lands his 1913 baseballing position. He said last night he had nothing definite in view as yet.

When Arndt left for the state capital his baseball status was undecided, but during his stay there the local players, including the boss, became free agents. Harry wants to land either a managerial position in class B or a playing position with a class B or AA club. He has been mentioned as the Grand Rapids Black Stockings' next first sacker, but it is unlikely Arndt will be seen in the Central league this season.

FORT WAYNE HAS SUSPENDED LIST

Number of Players Had Not Signed by the First of March.

OTHER CLUBS SUFFER

Ray Haley, last season with Wheeling, and secured for the Fort Wayne team this year; Billy Goldrick, Art Loudell, Harry Martin, Mark Lafferty, Carl Vandangrift, Chris Chambers, Bradley Valliere, V. A. Hopper, Frank (Tommy) Adkins, Guy Tutewiler and Al Baschang have all been suspended by the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues for failure to sign their contracts by March 1.

This does not mean that these men will be out of the game in 1913 or that they will not play with Fort Wayne, but recent rulings of the association make it obligatory upon club owners to file the first of March of each year a list of the names of players who have failed to sign and return their contracts and they automatically go on the ineligible list and must be restored to good standing before they can play ball. This restoration process is simple.

Contracts must be sent out by the owners on or before Feb. 1 and this gives the players four weeks to decide upon whether or not they will accept the terms. Frequently they open up a correspondence with the owner that consumes time and the first of March rolls around before this correspondence has been carried to a successful conclusion.

There are, of course, a great many players who refuse the terms offered and who are real holdouts and no doubt Fort Wayne has some of them, but Owner Claude H. Varnell has always been just as liberal with his players as the salary limit will admit, and has had very little trouble with his men.

He does not make public his negotiations with his players as he thinks that as long as he pays his men well and pays them promptly the public is not greatly interested and for that reason it is difficult to tell who is dissatisfied and who is holding off for other reasons.

The list of unsigned players is taken fro mthe official bulletin issued by Secretary John H. Farrell, of the national association, and it is probable that since the names were sent in on March 1 several contracts have been signed and that it has been materially reduced.

Fort Wayne has had less trouble with holdouts than any club in the minors, and when the time to report rolls around all of the men wanted will be on hand. Bradley Vallivre has been under suspension for two years because he refused to report to a club that he was sold to and he is not expected to report.

Chris Chambers quit professional baseball several years ago and his name is on the suspended list simply to protect the Fort Wayne club's title to his services.

Frank Armstrong has been suspended by Dayton because he failed to get in the fold in time and it is certain that there are many other holdouts over the circuit but they have not been reported because the owners are not as prompt in making reports or as honest in sending in their lists as Mr. Varnell has been.

WELLS RULES AS FAVORITE.

English Fighter Picked to Beat "Gun boat" Smith Tonight."

New York, March 14—Bombardier Wells, the British heavyweight champion, with probably from 15 to 20 pounds' advantage in weight and a considerably stronger ring record, ruled favorite in his scheduled ten-round bout with "Gunboat" Smith, of California, in Madison Square garden tonight. Smith's followers, however, asserted that the former sailor was in such perfect condition that he was certain to make the bout a far more troublesome affair than Wells' admirers expected, if not to win over the English champion.

FABRIQUE IS BOUGHT.

A. La Verne, alias Bunny Fabrique, has been bought by the Fort Wayne club from Providence. This information is contained in a late bulletin issued by the national association.

M'GRAW MAKES HIS MEN KEEP ON JUMP IN TRAINING CAMP.

JOHN J. "MUGSY" M'GRAW TODAY AND IN THE PAST.

Marlin, Tex., March 14. "Keep a-movin" is the standing order on the McGraw training program for the men who hope to be Giants in 1913.

"I boil 'em out and make them keep moving," vouchsafes McGraw when asked to explain his system. "When the sun gets in its work and perspiration oozes without much effort, there's not much danger of injury from exertion, but the wind soon cools out the men who don't 'keep a-movin' and so it is necessary for them to work steadily and sweat.

"I don't coddle my players. There's no sense in letting them lay off every time a muscle aches. Muscles are bound to ache when they begin to loosen. That's what muscles are for. Hard work is the best antidote for aches, and, you bet, my men get it in large doses. That's why they get right quickly and stay put.

"Don't ask me how the team looks or what the chances are. It is easier to snatch a pennant on paper than on a ball lot. I have more youngsters than I had a year ago, but I can't tell what they are going to do until they are tried."

Anyone who imagines McGraw likes the game so well he will stick around until rounted out has another thought to express. John J. admits that he has thought of the day when he will no longer be useful in his present capacity and has planned to beat the other fellow—meaning the New York club—to it by getting out before he is retired.

"When I feel myself slipping I'll step out, but this doesn't mean I'll quit baseball. I will always have something to sell over the baseball counter.

"I can't imagine a man tiring of the game as long as he is successful. But the game can get away from even a baseball man. Take Charley Comiskey as illustration. He stepped aside for Clarke Griffith, Jimmy Callahan and Fielder Jones, because he probably realized he was losing his fighting spirit on the field.

"When I find myself marking time I'll follow Comiskey's lead and quit. I have a contract with the Giants. Things may happen before 1915. The game is getting faster every day and you cannot make a prediction with safety in baseball. I was ambitious as a player and I think my desire to make good has been my most desirable asset as a manager."

McGraw teaches his players that there is no such thing as luck and he seeks to eradicate the superstitions that usually attach to a club. He believes figures tell the truth and that nine times out of ten the man with the best record is the best man.

McGraw does not seek to restrict his player's conduct. He tells them at the start they are to live as they see fit and that unless they appreciate their responsibility and take care of themselves they will be the means of their own undoing.

"What I try to do is to get men big enough to realize that self-indulgence means failure sooner or later. When they realize that their life in fast company depends upon keeping in condition the men big enough for my team conduct themselves accordingly.

"I have no set rules for the training. I see that they work hard; I help them overcome faults. Some men require more attention than others to develop them to the highest point."

HUMAN HEAD AS SOUVENIR.

Sends Ancient South American Relic to Father.

Boulder, Col., March 14.—A human head, reduced to about one-sixth of its original size and thought to be several thousand years old, has been received here by J. A. Davis, past master of Colorado Grand Lodge of Masons, the head being sent to him as a curio by his son, Dr. Philip Davis, who secured it from a tribe of head hunters, while on a recent trip to the headwaters of the Amazon river.

The head is reduced by an unknown process in which the bones are entirely removed, and is embalmed. The long black hair of the native adorns the head of the curio, while a long white string hangs from its upper lip.

Dr. Davis has just returned to the United States from three years spent in South America, where he expects to return after attending to business in the east.

NEW CATCHER TO USE "BIG STICK"

Roosevelt of Base Ball Hopes to Break in With Knoll Team.

BATS ARE ORDERED

Evansville, Ind., March 14.—If Frank Faulkinberry lands a job as second catcher with Charles ("Punch") Knoll and his troupe of Evansville baseball experts he will be to the Central league just what Col. Theodore Roosevelt is to the political game as he expects to wield a big stick and to wield it to good effect.

Faulkinberry, now coaching a college team at Fayetteville, Tenn., every spring sends in an order to a bat manufacturer for a dozen bats. Most all ball players do this sort of thing, but the unusual feature of this order is that he specifies that each stick must measure 44 inches in length. Also those bats must be built along bulky lines. It was with twelve of these made to order weapons that Faulkinberry managed to finish the season in the local K. I. T. team last year with a batting average of .310.

"Evansville could not find a better second catcher in the minor leagues," said L. B. Sissons, business manager of the Kittens last year. "If he doesn't make good as first catcher he will surely toe the mark in the race for utility receiving work."

Faulkinberry has the distinction of slamming out the longest hit in the K. I. T. circuit last year. It happened at Hopkinsville. The big boy hit the ball on a direct line so far that the impression down in "old Kaintuck" prevails to this day that the ball is "still traveling." It is claimed that the ball was hit so hard that it would have gone over the center field fences on the fair grounds.

The catcher is not a home run hitter, ordinarily, and he only negotiated one homer last year on the local grounds. On this occasion he hit the ball on a straight line over deep left field fence with a precision that put the drive down on records as one of the most vicious of its kind in local baseball annals.

COAKLEY TO BOX AT GARRETT.

Will Meet Howard Wiggins There In a Bout Tuesday Night.

Frank Coakley, manager for his brother, Glenn Coakley, has arranged a match with Howard Wiggins and will stage it at Garrett on next Tuesday night. There will be a number of preliminary bouts and the card promises to be a good one.

Coakley wants to get on in a good match at Fort Wayne and negotiations are on with Manager George Biemer, of the Summit City Athletic club. Biemer recognizes the fact that the local man would be a good drawing card here and would like to put him on and is prevented only by the fact that he cannot find the right boxer to meet him.

He still has under consideration the proposition from Chicago promoters to put on the Dillon-Caponi battle.

SOLD MORTGAGED HORSE.

Appleton, Wis., March 14.—Edward Williams, outfielder on the Indianapolis American association baseball team, is in jail here charged with selling a horse some months ago on which there was a mortgage. Williams is held in lieu of a $500 bond. His trial is set for March 26.

PADDEN DID NOT ADMIT PURCHASE

Did Not Say Anything About Deal for the Wheeling Team.

KEEPS HIS COUNSEL

Wheeling, W. Va., March 14.—When it comes to keeping cases on his few words and saying nothing when saying nothing is the most expedient thing to do, one Richard Padden, known some time as Dick, and a resident of Martin's Ferry, O., has all the great diplomats lashed to the mast.

He it known that Richard is back from a certain meeting held in Columbus, O., at which the Wheeling baseball franchise was not only the center of local interest but was what used to be called the "cynosure of all eyes."

The presence at the meeting of Mr. Padden, coupled with the fact that he has been for a couple of years flirting with the baseball situation at Wheeling, indicated that he had some designs on the franchise. Scribes—the name applied to young men who write baseball outside of the majors, and who do turns at church picnics and other important events when they are not scribing—expected that Sir Richard would cut loose with a line of news justifying double column heads on the first page.

When he was asked about the meeting, his plans for the future and other things that are of vital interest to the hundred fans who attend the games regularly here, and the several hundred who are content to stay away and knock, he solemnly announced that Everett Robinson had put up $2,000 to go into the general guarantee fund of the league.

Unburdening his mind of this weighty matter which had been carried over the wires three days before, Mr. Padden set about making preparations for his return to Martin's Ferry and the general public here knows just as much about the situation a it did before he came and went.

That Padden is seriously contemplating the purchase of the club is certain and that he is looking for backing is equally as certain but he will not talk about it and there is nothing left but to guess and wait.

PLAY SKYSCRAPER BASEBALL.

Chicago Diamond on Roof 200 Feet Above Street Level.

Chicago, March 14.—Skyscraper baseball played 200 feet above the street level is the newest sport adopted by employes in the main building of the Chicago Telephone company since the mild weather has made outdoor playing possible. A baseball diamond has been laid out on the roof of the new building and two teams organized. Every day during the noon hour the teame play a few innings. The diamond is enclosed by a six-foot wall and the roof is so large that no one has yet been able to bat the indoor ball, which is used, out of the "grounds."

UMPIRE ON HAND TO AID REFEREE

Concordia Will Put Man on Floor to Work With Barnhart.

PREVENT ROUGH PLAY

Concordia college basket ball has exercised its right to have a second man on the floor in the game at Library hall tonight in which the city championship is at stake, and will present Mr. Schmidt, an athletic director connected with the Detriot Y. M. C. A. to act in conjunction with Barnhart, the referee.

This fact was communicated late last night to Manager Otto Pohlmeyer and was not objected to as the students have this privilege and the Friars feel confident that half a dozen officials will make no difference as they expect to put on a cletan game and also expectto win.

Concordians say that the presence of the umpire is to insure that rough play will be eliminated and that the rules will be adhered to and they feel certain their chances will be better cared for with another man to keep his eye on the play. The referee has to follow the ball all the time and is apt to lose sight of fouls that may be committed by players who are not directly engaged in chasing it.

Barnhart, however, has proven very conclusively that he will penalize violations of the rules and the Friars have proven that they can put on an excellent brand of basket ball and adhere as strictly to the rules as any club engaged in the game so the spectators can look for a nice exhibition.

Each club will go into the game with its regular line-up and neither will carry a handicap, and both will have enough at stake to make them hustle for a victory.

SAYS GOSSIP CAUSED ACT.

Dr. Six Writes Note Before Taking Life by Shooting.

Hartford City, Ind., March 14.—Dr. A. G. Six, former Hartford City resident, who shot himself at Lawrence, Mich., was driven to suicide by gossip, according to a note he left. Last February the doctor's wife and daughter were burned to death in an explosion that wrecked their home. Gossip was current that the physician had murdered his wife and daughter. The note he left follows: "I loved my wife and child more than anything else in the world. God knows, and it grieves me so to think that others believe me guilty of murdering them that I would rather die than live like this. I believe that I am doing the best that I can under the circumstances."

Thinness Easily Overcome

(From "Health and Beauty.")

Further evidence is being presented almost daily that a recent compound of new chemical elements combined in a tablet with hypophosphites is in reality proving a blessing to the abnormally thin men and women, for it can be demonstrated beyond doubt that a regular course of three or four months' treatment brings an increase in weight of from 10 to 30 pounds, with a decided improvement of health and color too. For self administration the most popular form is to be found in three grain hyponuclane tablets, obtainable in sealed packages from the best apothecary shops, with full directions.

WANT A WIRELESS WAY TO THE STARS

Electrical Society to Spend Million Dollars in Advertising.

BACKED BY BILLIONS

New York, March 14.—"To find a pathway to the stars by wireless" is one of the ambitions of the Society for Electrical Development, incorporated, representing eight billions of dollars invested in electrical enterprises, which concluded its initial conferences with a banquet at Delmonico's.

At this meeting the society planned to spend about $1,000,000 on advertising. Its members say that it is the wealthiest incorporated body in the world, and that it will hasten civilization by doing away with hand labor.

Don C. Seitz, the first speaker of the evening, concluded by saying that "it is not too much to believe that some future Edison will find a pathway through electricity to the planets."

This remark was received with applause and cries of "We are the people who will do it," "That is no idle dream, either."

William C. Campbell of Pittsburg, president of two electrical companies, scribbled "A pathway to the stars" on a menu. He said it would be a good motto for the new society and agreed with other members that the organization's eight billions should make the best paving blocks imaginable.

Telegrams were sent to Thomas A. Edison of Orange and Charles F. Brush of Cleveland thanking them for the interest they have taken in the society.

During the speeches J. W. Wakeman, general manager of the society, and W. H. Johnson, president of the Philadelphia Electric company, at the speakers' table, fell over backward out of their chairs in spite of the well authenticated fact that they had been drinking only mineral water.

When Mr. Wakeman got up he exclaimed: "I just saw those stars you were talking about."

WILL BAKE BREAD TO FOUND A HOME

So Unfortunate Married People May Not Be Separated Late in Life.

PLAN OF YOUNG LADY

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., March 14.—The found an industry with the purpose of using the proceeds to build a home for aged married couples is the enterprise which Mrs. Lucy Bishop Smith, wife of Silas R. Smith, a Poughkeepsie contractor, has undertaken. Mrs. Smith hopes to establish the home by baking bread.

Mrs. Smith his purchased a building site in Church street, in this city, where she will establish her bakery. She expects to turn out the first loaves this summer.

"I long have had the ambition to build and endow a home for aged married couples," said Mrs. Smith. "Ever since I saw the Hollenbeck Home, in Los Angeles, Cal., which was founded and is maintained for that purpose, I have been arranging to build such a home in Poughkeepsie.

"How hard and cruel it is to separate aged persons who have lived a lifetime in affectionate companionship just at the time they need each other's sympathy and help most! I don't know how successful I am going to be in this venture, but if it succeeds every dollar I make will be applied to the realization of my ambition.

"I want to bring brightness into darkened lives and help smooth the pathways of aged couples who have met with misfortune. I expect to start the new home just as soon as I have money enough to pay for the building"

Mob Attacks Joss House Caretaker With Rotten Eggs.

San Francisco, Cal., March 14. Chin Guy, the aged caretaker of the joss house at 840 Grant avenue, was attacked in the street, had rotten eggs thrown in his eyes and his queque cut off by supporters of the Young China association.

After Guy had his queque nipped the hair was tossed back to him and a mob of 500 Chinese, shrieking and yelling, surrounded him and danced. Fearing the old man would be mallhandled, Corporals Goff and Sheble, with several squad men, hustled him to the hall of justice, with a howling, jeering crowd following.

Chin Guy was proud of his queque and is one of but four in Chinatown who boasted of the insignia of the old empire. Chin Guy wept at his misfortune.

ESTABLISH NEW DEPARTMENT

Fort Wayne Electric Works Installs R. J. Martz as Chemist.

PENNSY GETS DIRT UNLOADING MACHINE

Will Use It in Making Improvements in Ft. Wayne This Season.

The Fort Wayne Electric works is adding a new department to the plant—a chemical and physical laboratory. It will be located in the two-story brick house west of the foundry building, in Wall street, which is now being fitted up for the purpose, and R. J. Martz will have charge of the department. It is expected to have the laboratory in operation in a few weeks. Chemist Martz graduated from the Franklin college in 1910, then took employment in West Virginia in that line of work. Last fall he resigned there and until he came here last week to take his present position he was in the Illinois university at Champaign. He is a son of Dr. Christian Martz.

Charles Kramer and a box of cigars appeared simultaneously at the shop office at the Fort Wayne Electric works and as he passed the smokers among the boys Mr. Kramer stated that it was on account of the arrival of a baby boy at his home.

WORKING ON NORTH SIDE.

Pennsylvania Changes Base of Operations at Gay Street.

The big steam shovel in operation reducing the hill east of Hanna street, between the Pennsylvania and the Wabash tracks, has completed its work on the south side of the hill as far as the viaduct and was yesterday backed up and set at work cutting down the bank for the tracks on the north side of the elevation. A Ledgerwood unloader and spreader arrived at the round house last night and is being made ready for business. This machinery consists of an engine, a big cable drum, a cable, a right hand plow for removing the dirt from the cars and a spreader for throwing the dirt farther from the tracks and leveling it for a distance of ten or twelve feet from the tracks upon which the train is standing. When it is in operation the men engaged in grading and unloading the earth will be able to handle 100 car loads per day; they can handle only forty under the present system of unloading by hand. The linemen who have been engaged in putting up a line of new poles clear of the site of the proposed new tracks completed that work today and the old poles will be taken down as the steam shovel reaches them.

NEW CRANE IN OPERATION.

Big Machine Now Doing the Work for Which it Was Designed.

Assistant Foreman H. C. Daseler, of the Pennsylvania electrical department, completed the work of connecting the recently installed crane this afternoon. This crane will handle the locomotive driver wheels at the big lathe in the shops, thus relieving the boiler shop crane of that part of its work. Elmer Davis has been appointed operator of the new crane.

DISCUSSING LUBRICANTS.

E. W. Hayes, representing the Galena Oil company and known by the railroad men in every part of the country, was in the city today, attending a conference of Wabash road officials on the subject of lubricating oils. The meeting was held in Master Mechanic G. W. Smith's office and besides Mr. Hayes there were present Chief Clerk Perry A. Thompson, General Road Foreman of Engines J. B. Hurley, Fuel Inspector R. A. Mesmore, Road Foreman of Engines James Bell, of Montpelier, and Road Foreman of Engines W. W. Nall, of Peru.

WILL GO TO TEXAS.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hobrock will leave some time next week for Dallas, Texas, where they may remain several weeks if they find the sojourn there is likely to be beneficial to Mrs. Hobrock's health. She has been ailing for some months and the trip is advised by her physician. Mr. Hobrock is the general shop clerk at this point for the Pennsylvania.

WILL GIVE ANOTHER DANCE.

Chairman C. T. Mutott, of the joint committee of Unity hall, announces that the joint committee, assisted by the auxiliary ladies, will give another dance at the hall Saturday evening and that all friends are invited. These dances are very pleasant affairs and grow in popularity with the respectable people who like to dance. The three orders interested are the O. R. C., the B. R. T. and the B. L. F. & E.

PAINTING THE DEPOT.

The Nickel Plate passenger station and office building is to receive new paint, both internally and externally. The painters are here now preparing for the work.

INDUSTRIAL NOTES.

Pennsylvania Fireman H. Frost is sick and off duty.

G. A. Lash, who had been sick two or three days, reported for work in the Pennsylvania shops this morning.

J. C. Sullivan, superintendent of the Wabash, was in the city today on business with the local officials.

A. Black, a freight handler at the Pennsylvania warehouse, was injured about the legs yesterday and was taken to St. Joseph hospital.

Engineer C. P. Lake, who was sick ten days, and Engineer A. R. Downing, who was sick a week, reported for work this morning.

M. Shime, A. Dornte, D. Mungovan, G. L. Holtry, F. Muellenbruch, J. C. Traxler and W. Parkins, Pennsylvania shopmen, are sick and off duty.

W. H. Weideman, who had one of his hands injured a week ago, resumed work in the carpenter department of the Pennsylvania shop this morning.

M. H. Spellman, of the construction department of the Electric works, is entertaining his mother, who resides in Cincinnati.

Passenger Engineer M. E. Ames, of the Grand Rapids and Indiana road, resumed work today. He had been sick three months.

G. A. Gardner, fireman on the G. R. & I., had one of his ankles sprained yesterday and will be unable to work for awhile.

Robert Orff, of the construction department of the Fort Wayne Electric works, is moving from 1024 East Jefferson street to 999 East Jefferson street.

Engineer Joseph J. Leeper, who was stricken with paralysis about six months ago, is improving and rapidly gaining strength.

W. Watkins, colored, is in St. Joseph hospital sufferinig from injuries received by being struck by the handle of a truck. At first it was feared that his injuries were serious.

Miss Mary Telly, who recently resigned a position at the Fort Wayne Electric works, has accepted a similar position with the Corrugated Paper company.

R. T. Richey, employed as a helper in the Pennsylvania machine shop, resigned this morning on account of poor health. He worked in that shop nearly two years.

C. E. Clapp, agent of the Star Union line, of Chicago, and J. A. Burkett, Pennsylvania freight agent at South Chicago, were in the city yesterday, on business for the company.

Machinist William McNiece has taken employment at the Bass Foundry and Machine works. He formerly resided in Youngstown, Ohio, and was employed in one of the factories in that city.

Harry Perdiman, helper in the Pennsylvania machine shop, was injured yesterday afternoon, when an injector fell and struck him on the left arm, cutting an ugly gash.

M. Achmat, a foreign laborer at the Bass shops, had a finger painfully crushed yesterday when the digit was caught in some of the machinery in the foundry.

Arthur Stanburry, who had a foot hurt yesterday morning, while at work in the Pennsylvania store house, was taken to the St. Joseph hospital and not to his home, as some of the city papers stated.

Foreman William Poyser, of the carpenter department of the Wabash shops, had a gash cut in his scalp yesterday when a box filled with toilet soap fell from a shelve and struck him. Dr. C. F. Kandt attended him.

P. A. Garn has been transferred from the construction department of the Fort Wayne Electric works, in this city, to the Chicago office, which is a nice promotion. He has been succeeded by H. C. Bryan, for a year in the testing department.

The Nickel Plate pay car will arrive in the city about 3 o'clock next Tuesday afternoon. The amount distributed will exceed the pay rolls for February in the history of the line, because of the big business and the great number of men in the train service.

Shop Clerk J. H. Evans, of the Fort Wayne Electric works, has called Miss Marie Stevens and Miss Helen Felly from one of the other departments to his office to fill vacancies occasioned by the promotion of two of the clerks. The young ladies are possessed of considerable ability in clerical work.

Supt. J. C. Sullivan, chairman of the division safety committee of the Wabash, was too busy otherwise this week to attend a meeting of the committee, which should have been held yesterday, and he postponed it until next week on a day to be announced later. The meeting will be held in Fort Wayne.

Mrs. James A. Lechler, wife of the Wabash machinist, was operated upon at the Lutheran hospital yesterday for the removal of a tumor, from which she suffered severely several months. Mr. Lechler, who had been off duty on account of his wife's illness, reported for work this morning.

E. E. Dilding, who was here on business and for a short visit, left this afternoon for Philadelphia to resume the work of inspecting locomotive construction at the Baldwin works for the Pennsylvania company. Mr. Dilding, who was in a hospital in Philadelphia suffering from erysipelas a few weeks ago, has completely recovered.

Three new names appeared on the pay rolls of the Pennsylvania machine shop this morning and four were stricken therefrom. The new men are J. A. McNally, a machinist formerly employed in the Wabash shops, and M. H. Ehrman and J. G. Binmeal, helpers, and the men who quit the shop were F. J. Legros, E. Popp, N. Aposta and S. Damos, all laborers.

Frank Shorbondy, chief electrician at the plant of S. E. Bowser & Co., is quite sick with pneumonia. He was taken ill two weeks ago and his condition was dangerous for several days, but there has been an improvement which assures speedy recovery. Yesterday Clara, the six year old daughter of Mr. Shorbondy, was taken ill with scarlet fever, putting the house under quarantine. She is not in a serious condition, however. Other children in the family were removed from the premises and will escape the disease.

MEN WHO TEST DYNAMOS AND MOTORS AND THEIR METHOD OF PERFORMING THE WORK.

When the moulder, the blacksmith, the machinist, the armature winder and the painter have finished their work upon a dynamo or motor at the Fort Wayne Electric works, it is turned over to the general testing department to be tried out. There it is put through much more severe tests than it is ever likely to experience in the lighting or power plant for which it is designed and it is not allowed to leave the testing room until every part of it is found to be in perfect condition. Then it is turned over to the crating department and thence to the shipping department to be loaded and started for its destination. The testing department of the Fort Wayne Electric works is located in the big new factory building, the south part of the first floor being used for that purpose, and it is equipped with all the latest and best apparatus. M. S. Willson has charge of the department and he has a force that varies in numbers according to the number of students on hand, for it is in this department that young men from the colleges and universities who are being trained to take charge of electric plants or engage in business that has to do with matters electrical round out their education. At present there are few students and Mr. Willson has only twelve assistants. They are represented in the above reproduction of a photograph taken a few days ago. The personnel of the group is as follows: First row—Russell Harrull, M. S. Willson and Julian Speer; second row—R. C. Chase, H. L. Bartels, George R. Blakesley, George Ruck, B. J. Hoffman and [illegible] Farrell; third row—Loren Klingman, W. J. Bryan and Fred Dunbar. The three machines shown at the side of the group are part of a consignment that will soon be made to Coledale, New South Wales, Australia. The order calls for nine machines. When the photograph was presented to The Sentinel representative it was referred to as a "picture of Wilson and his cabinet." On the day President Woodrow Wilson was inaugurated the "boys" in the testing department held another inaugural and named M. S. Willson president of the testing department as well as general foreman. Then they selected from their own ranks the men who compose his "cabinet" and the most important diplomatic offices. Mr. Willson is one of the very few men now employed at the Fort Wayne Electric works who has been with the concern from the beginning, more than a third of a century ago.

WERE PLAYING "WILD WEST."

Eight-Year-Old Lad Fatally Shoots Playmate at Evansville.

Evansville, Ind., March 14.—Playing "wild west" yesterday, Lester Downing, 8 years old, shot and seriously wounded George Ripplemeier, aged 6. The bullet struck the smaller boy in the throat and is believed to be lodged in his spinal column. Doctors say he cannot recover.

The Downing boy found the revolver, a 22 calibre, in a drawer in his father's desk at the house. Putting it in his pocket he sought Ripplemeier, a playmate, and after a few minutes drew the gun and fired. The boys were about fifteen feet apart.

Downing ran home after the shooting and was found there by the police, who are holding him at headquarters. When asked why he shot his playmate, Downing only sobbed. He has given no reason.

SUFFRAGISTS TO GO IN SCHOONERS

Missouri Women Will Invade the Ozarks in Old Covered Wagons

IN GREAT CAMPAIGN

St. Louis, March 13.—Do not be surprised if some day you happen to see a small caravan of covered wagons heading down the Gravois road, past the Grant farm and the Busch chateau and across the Meramec, disappearing into the fastnesses of Jefferson county and thence spreading out, each wagon taking a different road, or perhaps a blazed trail, through the Ozarks.

It will signalize no new migration of pioneers seeking settlements in the wilds. It will be merely the vanguard of the equal suffrage crusaders, setting out to do pioneer electioneering for the cause among the rural populace of the Ozark region, which covers most of southern Missouri.

That is one of the campaign methods agreed upon by the leaders of the St. Louis Equal Suffrage league. This body in reality is at the head of the state movement for woman suffrage and is the nucleus from which and by which the great state league is being molded into form.

May Use the Initiative.

The women conducting the campaign declared emphatically while they were seeking to get the legislature to submit an equal suffrage constitutional amendment to popular vote, that the men of Missouri would have an opportunity to vote on the question at the November election of 1914, no matter what action the legislature might take.

If the submission measure were defeated, they said, they would begin immediately to get petitioners under the state initiative law with the same end in view, and they could not possibly fail in that, as only about twenty-five thousand signatures are necessary.

North of the Missouri river, as a rule, the motor car will be used by parties of earnest women workers. South of the river, where the roads are good, the motor car will be used, but it is expected that in a great many counties of southern Missouri the horse and buggy or the covered wagon will be necessary.

On the Blazed Trail.

While there are many good roads in the Ozarks, there also are districts of considerable area where a motor car could not find passage. It being the intention of the women to carry their message to every town, hamlet, crossroads store, farmhouse and hilltop hut in Missouri, the hardiest vehicles must be used on some roads.

There still is in remote Missouri districts where the blazed trail, familiar to the wilderness dweller of a century ago, may be found by the traveler seeking votes and local color. The trail is blazed by slicing patches of bark off trees a few feet apart and in time a path is made.

In other districts where the populace has advanced farther along the route that leads to modern transportation facilities, the woman suffragists will find an improvement on the blazed trail. This may be known as "the three-notched road" or "the two-notched road," according to the number of notches cut in each tree selected by the road tracer as a marker to guide the stranger.

To Organize Leagues Everywhere.

Some of those notched roads are the only routes between small towns in the Ozarks, and they lead past country schoolhouses and churches and the isolated dwellings of farm folk. By years of use the roads have become so well defined that it is unnecessary for the stranger to use the notched trees as guideposts, except where roads cross or branch off so that one may keep to the road desired.

"Our campaign," said Mrs. Daniel W. Knefler, the state campaign manager, "will cover thoroughly every section of Missouri. We shall organize a league at each county seat, and in some counties where there are important towns other than the county seat, there will be two leagues. Already we have two in Jasper county, at Joplin and Carthage, and in Marion county we expect to have leagues at Hannibal and Palmyra."

The women will speak from the wagons, and the money for the campaign of these suffragettes will be furnished by the women of the state.

Moving picture shows will be used as an added attraction to draw crowds.

VALUATION BILL MOST IMPORTANT

Railway Legislation Chief Among Acts of Last Congress.

ROADS ENDORSE IT

(By Gilson Gardner.)

Washington, March 14.—The most important piece of legislation passed by the congress which came to an end March 4 was that providing for a valuation of all railway properties in the United States. This is known generally as the "physical valuation" bill, but the bill in fact provides for a general valuation of the roads. The work is to begin at once and half a million dollars has been appropriated for the purpose.

The remarkable thing about this bill is that it has become a law without opposition from the railroads. The railroads want this valuation to be made. They expect the result to be a bracing to their credit. They need money for betterments and they expect to make a showing as to the actual value and the earning value of their properties which will warrant the issue of several million dollars' worth of additional stocks and bonds.

Mr. L. F. Loree, president of the Delaware and Hudson Railway company, said to the committee when the bill was under consideration: "The railroads of this country, it is pretty generally conceded, will be called upon to raise from seven hundred and fifty to one thousand million dollars annually for the expansion of their properties to take care of the business of the country. Credit is a very sensitive plant. I am not a very old man, but I can remember when the bonds and the notes—the demand notes of the United States—sold at less than 40 cents on the dollar, measured in gold, and it is quite possible that the credit of the roads might be so shaken as to amount to a public calamity. Therefore, what I think is of great importance is that in handling this question the interstate commerce commission be furnished with a suitable instrument for dealing with it."

Prominent railroad officials value the properties in the United States at fifteen billion dollars. Mr. Frank Trumbull, representing the board of directors of the Chesapeake and Ohio railway, told the same congressional committee that "the railroads of this country have a book value of fourteen or fifteen billion dollars—which far exceeds the properties of Great Britain, France or Germany."

Mr. Trumbull appeared before the committee favoring the valuation bill, and merely asked that competent men be secured to make the valuation. Continuing as to the value of the roads, Mr. Trumbull said: "The railroads have cost fourteen billion dollars and the railroad men have raised this by private credit and not by government aid. We are under the necessity of maintaining credit on fourteen billion dollars of property, and if this valuation work is poorly done or inefficiently done you may injure the credit of the greatest property in the world. That fact is the crux of the whole problem—maintaining our credit."

Mr. Frederick A. Delano, president of the Wabash railroad, told the committee: "The only benefit that the railroads expect to get out of it is in allaying the feeling that seems to be so general that railway property is very much overvalued. Railway men do not think that is so. They feel perfectly confident that a fair valuation will show that it is not so. But we do not want to spend our money without results. We want to see our money spent in a way that will show the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth."

The law provides that the railway valuation shall discover (1) original cost to date, (2) cost of reproduction new, (3) cost of reproduction less depreciation, (4) other values and elements of value—that is, intangible values.

Under one section of the law the commission must find the value of terminals and other properties not strictly railroad properties, such as hotels, restaurants, boot-blacking stands, forests, lands and speculative investments. In learning the value of terminals, including terminal sites, the commission is ordered to get the value as of the time the terminal was dedicated to railroad use, and then separately and later to consider the value which such land or improvements may have acquired as a result of the access of population and the growth of business. The commission is ordered to go into the history of early railroad grants and find how much the railroads paid for certain properties and privileges; also how much was given to the railroads in the way of bounties and subsidies by cities, states and nation.

The law requires that the work begin within sixty days after the passage of the act and that the commission report progress to every session of congress. The work is to be under the general direction of the interstate commerce commission.

The facts collected by this inquiry are intended to furnish a basis for arriving at a just schedule of rates. The interstate commerce commission will presumably use it in making its rate orders. It will also be a basis for arriving at a fair tax valuation of railroad properties in the various states. The railroads regard this feature as favorable, hoping that any scaling down of values will scale down their taxes. On the other hand, any scaling up of values will justify a higher level of freight rates.

The railroads anticipate that the final decision in all these matters will lie in the courts and that the data collected by this valuation will merely furnish the courts with a basis for their decisions.

Cripple Tom; or, Knowing is Loving and Loving is Doing

By Mrs. Walter Searle.)

The following beautiful incident of consecration in lowly life teaches us that the most adverse circumstances, coupled even with constant suffering, need not interfere with a life of intense devotion to Jesus Christ.

In one of the deplorably miserable East London homes, in a dark, wretched room at the top of a house, lay a cripple boy. He had lain for over two years, greatly neglected and comparatively unknown. When quite young, his parents had died, leaving him to the mercy of an aged relative whom he called "Granny."

Born a cripple, he had always been a sufferer; but as long as he was able he had swept a crossing on his crutches or gone short errands, to earn a few pence. But soon after his parents' death the boy had to take to his bed. Very ungraciously the old woman allowed him to occupy the top room in her house, which room he never left again.

His mother had taught him to read and write, but, not knowing the truth herself, she had never told him of "Jesus and his love." Sometimes, however, on a snowy night, when the wind was blowing hard and cold, the boy had crept into the mission hall, not far distant, merely for the sake of getting a warming by the comfortable stove. Numb with cold and weary in body, he took little heed of what he heard on those nights; but afterward, lying alone day after day, there came into his mind the memory of it, and by degrees he was possessed of a great longing to know more about the things of God, and to have a Bible of his own. He knew that it was from the Bible the speakers had gathered their knowledge and that was all. So summoning up courage he one day consulted granny about it. His only encouragement in that direction was an ironical laugh. Bibles were not in her line! What did a lad like him want with Bibles? So the matter dropped for a time, but the lad's desire to possess one for himself did not grow less.

One day, however, up the creaking stairs came noisy, boisterous Jack Lee, the only friend the poor cripple had in the world. "Hurrah! hurrah! Got a new box. Off for the north tomorrow! Come to say good-by, Tom," he cried, all excitement, seating himself on the bed and wiping the perspiration from his brow; "but I've got a real beauty present for you, my lad," taking from his pocket something wrapped in a bit of brown paper and handing it to Tom.

Tom raised himself on his elbows, not at all gladdened by the news he had heard. "A bright new shilling for you, Tom, lad. And you're not to spend it till yer wants suthin real particular."

"Oh, Jack, you are good; but I want something now, very, very particular."

"Yer do? What's he"

"I want a Bible."

"Bible! well, I never! Who ever heard of a poor lad spending all that on a Bible, when I had to scrape months and months to save it in coppers?"

"Don't be angry, dear Jack," said the cripple boy. "You're going away and I shall be lonelier than ever, and oh, I do so want a Bible. Please get it, Jack now—this very evening, at Fisher's before the shop closes. Granny never would; she'd spend it for gin, if I let it get into her hands."

"What can yer want with a Bible, Tom, lad? Only scholars understand them there things," he answered rather crossly.

"Maybe so, Jack, but I'm hankering after one; for I must find out whether them folks in the mission hall you and I sometimes used to go to told true about some one they called Jesus. Let it be your parting gift, Jack, and you will make me so glad."

"Very well, lad, then I'll go, but I knows naught about Bible buyin'."

"Fisher has 'em at a shilling, for I saw 'em marked in the window when I used to go by. Quick, Jack, or the shop will be closed."

Jack complied very ungraciously, and descended the stairs less rapidly than he had mounted them. But he got over his disappointment before he returned with a beautiful shilling Bible. "Fisher says I couldn't leave you a better friend, Tom, lad, and he declares the shilling couldn't be 'vested better, and, says he, 'It may be worth a thousand pounds to the lad.' So 'pears there's suthin in it as we both ought to know about."

Tom's joy and gratitude were unbounded, "I know it, Jack. I know it!" hugging the book to his breast. "I'm happy now. Oh, how kind you were to save that shilling!"

The lads never met again, but if the honest errand boy could only have known what a precious treasure that holy book became to his cripple friend, he would have been amply rewarded for the sacrifice he made to save the shilling. After a month's hard reading Tom Reed knew more about his Bible than many who have professed to study it for twenty years. He had learned the way of salvation, his only teacher the Holy Spirit; he had learned also that obedience to God's will meant helping to save others.

"Fisher Says I Couldn't Leave You a Better Friend, Tom."

"It won't do to keep all this blessed news to myself," he said; so he thought and thought, until at last a simple but very beautiful work was decided on for the master. His bed stood close by the window sill, which was low, and by making a bargain with granny he got a pencil and wrote out different texts, which he would fold, pray over and then drop into the noisy street below, directed:

"TO THE PASSER-BY. PLEASE READ."

He hoped that by these means someone might hear of Jesus and his salvation. This service of love, faithfully rendered, went on for some weeks, when one evening he heard a strange footstep and immediately afterward a tall, well-dressed gentleman entered the room and took his seat by the lad's bedside.

"So you are the lad who drops texts from the window, are you?" he asked kindly.

"Yes, sir," said Tom, brightening up. "Have you yet heard as some one has got hold of one?"

"Plenty, lad, plenty! Would you believe it if I told you that I picked up one last evening, and God blessed it to my soul?"

"I can believe in God's word doing anything, sir," said the lad, humbly.

"And I am come," said the gentleman, to thank you personally."

"Not me, sir! I only does the writin'; he does the blessin'."

"And are you happy in this work for Christ?" said the visitor.

"Couldn't be happier, sir. I don't think nothin' of the pain in my back, for sha'n't I be glad when I see him, to tell him that as soon as I know'd about him I did all as I could to serve him? I suppose you gets lots of chances, don't yer, sir?"

"Ah, lad, but I have neglected them; but, God helping me, I mean to begin afresh. At home in the country I have a sick lad dying. I had to come to town on pressing business. When I kissed him good-by he said, 'Father, I wish I had done some work for Jesus. I can not bear to meet him empty-handed,' and the words stuck to me all day long, and the next day, too, until the evening, when I was passing down this street and your paper fell on my hat. I opened it and read, 'I must work the words of him that sent me, while it is day; the night cometh, when no man can work.' John 9:4. It seemed like a command from heaven. It startled me and brought me to my knees that night, and I could not sleep until I could sing:

"'Oh, the cleansing blood has reached me,
Glory, glory to the Lamb!'

"I have professed to be a christian for twenty-two years, my lad, and when I made inquiries and found out who dropped these texts into the street and why it was done, it so shamed and humbled me that I determined to go home and work for the same master that you are serving so faithfully."

Tears of joy were rolling down the lad's face.

"It's too much, sir," he said, "altogether too much."

"Tell me how you managed to get the paper to start it, my lad."

"That warn't hard, sir. I jest had a talk with granny, and offered to give up my ha'porth o' milk she gives me most days if she would buy me paper instead. You know, sir, I can't last long. The parish doctor says a few months of cold weather may finish me off, and a dron of milk ain't much to give up for my blessed Jesus.

"Are the people happy as has lots to give him, sir?"

The visitor sighed a deep sigh. "Ah, lad, you are a great deal happier in this wretched room, making sacrifices for Jesus, than thousands who profess to belong to him, and who have time, talents and money, and do little or nothing for him."

"They don't know him, sir. Knowin' is lovin', and lovin' is doin'. It ain't love without."

"You are right, Tom. But now about yourself. I must begin by making your life brighter. How would you like to end your days in one of those homes for cripple lads, where you would be nursed and cared for, and where you would see the trees and flowers, and hear the birds sing? I could get you into one not far from my home, if you liked, Tom."

The weary lad looked wistfully into the man's kindly face, and after a few moments' silence answered:

"Thanks, sir; I've heard tell of 'em afore, but I ain't anxious to die easy when he died hard. I might get taken up with them things a bit too much, and I'd rather be a lookin' at him, and carryin' on this 'ere work till he come to fetch me. Plenty of joy for a boy like me to have a mansion with him up there through eternity." The visitor felt more reproved than ever.

"Very well, my lad; then I will see that you have proper food and all the paper you need while you live. I will settle it all with one of the Bible-women. Now, laddie, before I go I want you to pray aloud for me," and as he made the request the strong man knelt down by the dying boy's bedside, scarcely suppressing a sob as he covered his face with his hands. The lad trembled at the thought, but when he saw that bowed form, and heard that half-stifled sob, he knew he ought to comply with the request.

There was a seraphic light on the poor, pale, upturned face, as he said in a tone of the deepest reverence: "Lord Jesus, I know you're a listenin', and I'm much obliged to you for sending this friend here to cheer me in my work. Now, Lord Jesus, he's a bit troubled about not havin' worked for thee enough in the past days. Will you help him to see to it that there's nothin' left undone in the comin' days; and please, Lord, make him go straight away and tell them other rich men that they don't know thee if they aren't workin' for thee. And I'm grateful to you, Jesus, for all the paper and the food that's a-comin' to me while I live. Maybe I'll hold out a bit longer to write these texts for thee. Now, Lord Jesus, please bless this kind friend, all roads and all ways. I ask this for thy name's sake." "Amen," said the deep-toned voice.

Then the gentleman rose and said farewell.

Before leaving London he made every arrangement for the lad to be cared for, and then with a gladder heart he went back to his beautiful country home and lived for Christ. As soon as he could he built a mission hall on his own grounds and preached Jesus to the villagers.

When he confessed his sin of negligence toward them, and told them of his new consecration through the cripple boy and his text, many of them were led to "seek Jesus."

News of the dying lad reached them from time to time through the Bible woman, but it was not till winter set in and the snow had fallen and covered the earth with its crystal whiteness that they heard that the dear lad had "gone to be with Jesus." The same post brought a parcel which contained Tom's much prized and much used Bible. What a precious relic was that marked Bible in that beautiful home! For, when the cripple boy's friend lent it to his youngest son to read, the careful marking, the short, simple prayers written by the cripple lad on the margin, and his dying wish on the fly-leaf, written about a week before his death, that "this Holy Book may be as great a friend to some one else as it has been to me," made such a deep impression on the youth that, he gave himself to the Lord, and later on to mission work in foreign fields. Out in Central Africa he has shown that worn Bible to many a native Christian when telling them about Cripple Tom and his texts.

Does the reader not see what one fully consecrated, lowly, self-sacrificing life can do? And are we not convinced that there is something terribly wrong when there are not more of such lives?

Thousands of sad, weary hearts are wanting the little ministry of love that we might render. Shall we then take our ease, enjoy our pleasure, or indulge in our luxuries? Millions of dark, benighted souls are crying out for the light; they have to continue groping in darkness, while many of us, professing to love Christ, live self-centered and self-indulgent lives. Today—without the help of the world—the Christian church could easily send out enough missionaries to evangelize the world; but the dark blot of "it won't" stains its fair name with a stain that nothing but the blood of Jesus Christ can ever wipe out.

Oh, that the Spirit of God would, by his mighty power, cleanse away all slothfulness, unreality and self-complacency from our lives; for following Christ means self-sacrifice; self-denial, and there is no such thing as holiness without it. If a dying lad, in suffering and destitution, could joyfully deny himself the little sip of milk which cooled his parched lips and partly fed his weary body, surely it is possible for us to do more!

"There are lonely hearts to cherish,
While the days are going by;
There are weary souls who perish,
While the days are going by.
If a smile we can renew,
As our journey we pursue,
Oh, what good we all may do,
While the days are going by."

"Who, then, is willing to consecrate his services this day unto the Lord?"

WORLD.

What is the best argument in the world? Well, it is prayer. You did not think of that, did you? But it's true. No one can "get back at you" when you pray. You have great unseen forces linked up with your purposes that your opponents never dream of. God is on your side, and no one can reply to God. The other night, while preaching on the west side of Chicago, a young fellow offered to ride back with me on the street cars. We were both going north. In the conversation he said his wife was a Roman Catholic. They had been married five months and they were as happy as could be. He said he thought that gradually he was winning her over and that sometimes they had great arguments. I asked him if they had family prayer. "Oh, no," he said, "we say our prayers separately." "Why don't you pray together?" I said. "That's the best argument in the world. "I never thought of that," he said. "I will begin tonight." Have you thought of that, or are you just talking yourself

POVERTY AND THE DRINKING EVIL.

Upon the very good authority of Hon. John Burns, the well known representative of British labor interests, we are told that more than $300,000,000 is paid out annually by Great Britain in the care of her poor and disabled citizens. He says that more than 90 per cent of this sum might be saved if the sale and consumption of liquor were discontinued. Statistics of our own country show that the same conditions prevail here. Approximately 1,350,000 people must be annually supported by the respective state or county authorities, supplemented by the donations of private charity agencies, because they are unable to care for themselves. And all this because here, as in England, the liquor traffic is allowed a free hand in its work of destruction.—Gospel Messenger.

THE FAULTS OF OTHERS.

Charity does not require of us that we should not see the faults of others, but that we should avoid all needless and voluntary observing of them; and that we should not be blind to their good qualities, when we are so sharp-sighted to their bad ones.

What if others are weak, is that a reason for your no longer keeping any measure with them? You, that complain of their troubling you, do you give nobody any trouble? You that are so shocked at the faults you see? If all to whom you have been troublesome should return the trouble they have had with you, you would be oppressed with the weight. And, besides, even supposing that men had nothing to reproach you with, yet consider, further, what obligations you lie under from God to show forbearance toward others for which you know you have such abundant occasion at his hands.—Fenelon.

CHINESE PROVERBS.

A foolish husband fears his wife, a prudent wife obeys her husband.

If the upper beam be crooked, the lower one will be awry.

One lash to a good horse, one word to a wise man. (Compare Prov. xxvi, 3.)

He who does not soar high will suffer the less by a fall.

The grass endures but one season; man endures but one generation.

Sleeplessness in an old man, and wakefulness in a young one, are bad symptoms.

It is equally criminal in the emperor and the subject to violate the laws.

Let every man sweep the snow from before his own doors, and not busy himself about the frost on his neighbor's tiles.

DRUNKEN CHAUFFEURS.

Governor Sulzer is to be congratulated upon having the privilege of putting his first gubernatorial signature on such a bill as that which attaches a penalty of one year's imprisonment or $500 fine against intoxicated chauffeurs. A court has held the automobile a deadly weapon, and it may be even in sober hands. But with a drunken man at the wheel it is a public peril of the worst kind. No man has a right to drive a car if he has taken liquor. A chauffeur has no more business to drink than an engineer, and should be heavily penalized when caught under the influence.—Chicago Tribune.

BURDENS.

Everyone has burdens. Every true christian has many trials and temptations. The one who is a pilgrim and stranger down here is not promised an easy time, but he is promised a glorious welcome to his heavenly home when life's journey is over and all his lessons are learned.

We all need encouragement. And the best way to be encouraged ritht ttarr best way to be encouraged ourselves is to encourage others. The longer we think of our own burdens the heavier they become. But if we will bear the burdens of others, our own will grow light or roll off. The Lord Jesus Christ was a man of sorrows and many burdens, but he went about doing good and relieving those who were distressed. In Romans 15:1-3 we read that "even Christ pleased not himself." Therefore it is written: "We then that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to please ourselves. Let every one of us please his neighbor for his good edification."

What is needed today in our churches and in our homes are cheerful "Burden-Bearers." Will you be one? Instead of complaining about the hardness of your lot and the many burdens you have to bear, just help someone else, and you will find that Christ has borne your own. Try it today!

THE TRUE PEACE.

There is a peace which is not patience because it looks for nothing, longs for nothing, prays for nothing—a peace which is painless because it is numb, and is free from the struggle because it is dead. I would not have the gift, O my father! I have passed through the autumn woods and heard no waving of the leaves, not because there was no wind to blow, but because there was no sap to furnish. I would not have the gift, O my father! That is the peace of the grave. But thy peace is the peace of the ocean. It is the calm that holds depths beneath it. It is not the rest if friendlessness, but the rest of balance. Thy patience is the patience not of spentness, but of expectancy; it rests "in hope." Bring me that peace of thine, O God! Bring me the peace of pulsation, the calm of courage, the endurance that springs from energy! Bring me the fortitude of fervor, the repose through radiance, the tenacity that is born of trust! Bring me the silence that comes from serenity, the gentleness that is bred of joy, the quiet that has sprung from quickened faith! When I hear thee in the whirlwind, there will be a great calm!—Southern Churchman.

HOW TO HAVE YOUR OWN WAY.

This is a secret which we would like to whisper to the boys and girls, if they will put their ears down close enough.

You have long wanted your way. You have become tired of hearing mother say, "Come right home after school," "Don't be late," "Be sure to tell teacher." It is "Do this" and "Don't do that" all the time. You are sick of it, and would like to have your own way.

Well, put your ear down while we whisper the word "obey."

O, you think I am making fun! No, I am not. I know a boy who decided to do just what his father said. He never offered excuses, never tried to get out of work, until finally his father came to trust him perfectly. His father said, "I know that Harry will do what is right." When he went out at night, or to school, or to play, his father never said a word, for he had come to have perfect confidence in his boy.

Honestly, obedience is the road to freedom. If you want to have your way, just begin to obey, and you will find that you are having the happiest time of your life.—Apples of Gold.

RELIGIOUS SINCERITY.

Sincerity is essential in all goodness. There can be no acceptance with God, no escape from the condemnation and blight of sin and no real, personal joy in the Lord apart from childlike sincerity of purpose and purity of motive. This honesty of purpose always bears witness of itself in due time and in convincing manner. Real faith, genuine godliness and heart loyalty to Christ can not be hid. These qualities of heart and life need no label, neither blowing of trumpets to reveal their possession or presence. Neither can insincerity or hypocrisy be hid permanently. "Out of the heart are the issues of life." Except the heart and mind be under control of the Christ spirit, no cloak of righteousness can long cover up the natural perversity enthroned there.—Ex.

IF WE COULD BEGIN AGAIN.

How often have we been tempted to cry out, "O, that I had the wings of a dove, that I might fly away." We long for a land where we may begin again. And God promises just what we long for. Faith is the land where men may begin again. It is by faith that the old becomes new, the last becomes first and the flesh of the leper becomes again like the flesh of a little child. Faith ever sees the springtime in the winter's cold, it sees the fruit before the blossom falls, it sees the flowers where now only is desert, it sees the beautiful in the beast and hears the music in the storm. "All things are possible to him that believeth."

BE CAREFUL.

It is a rule of certain hospitals that nurses shall look closely at the label three times while giving medicine—first when they take up the bottle, next before giving the medicine, and once again immediately after the patient has taken the dose. Were we half as careful about choosing our words or harboring thoughts of other people, there would be far less danger of poisoning friendship. We can not too carefully regard the label of our speech.—Northwestern Advocate.

A FOOLISH BIRD.

In the early days of Illinois, some young men while hunting discovered an eagle at quite a distance sitting on the top of a small tree. Even in that day an eagle was a rare prize, worth almost any effort to secure. As they were steadily creeping to a point where they could shoot him, he suddely flew down to the ground and began feasting on some carrion. So engrossed was the king of birds with the banquet he had discovered that it was an easy task to secure a position for a sure shot. They fired and broke one of the eagle's wings, which made him an easily secured captive. He was ignominiously put into an old sack with a hole through which he might put his head for air. Exhibited in the town, he attracted much attention. Everybody called him a foolish bird, thus to expose himself to destruction. He evidently felt the shame and humiliation of his plight, as was shown by his fierce and unavailing struggles for freedom.

He was taken out of the sack and placed in a wooden cage, large and well lighted; but he was still a captive. The old, free life was gone forever. His proud spirit was broken, and after a few days' suffering from the gun wound and injuries inflicted by his wild struggles for liberty, he died—a victim to the debased tastes that led him to feast upon carrion. The monarch of the air, he sought the low and filling things of earth, and was easily made a captive.

TRUE AND BRAVE WOMEN.

To be able to look cheerfully and hopefully through clouds of poverty and distress is an accomplishment bestowed by nature upon every true and brave woman; and, no matter how poor or humble her home may be, the magic power of smiles can brighten its shadows and lighten its cares.

Upon the troubled mind of a feeling husband, a wife's smile falls like a sunbeam on a flower. And how much more beautiful it makes the face that wears it than a frown? When a wife and mother, forgetting sorrows and hardships, smiles away her tears, there is a loveliness in the act that speaks to a man's heart more eloquently than words.

YE ARE NOT YOUR OWN.

When Neesima was offered a high position under the Japanese government he refused, saying: "My life is not my own. Many years ago I solemnly swore to devote my entire time and effort to Christ's cause. I cannot take back my words and my heart." The official argued with him for hours, but to no avail. Finally he said: "Well, Neesima, I'm going. I'm sorry. You are indeed a slave to Jesus Christ." Mission fields today, at home and abroad, are calling loudly for men and women who are willing to become slaves of Jesus Christ.

NO KEEPING LIKE GOD'S.

Soldiers sleep in quietness and confidence, because all about the camp sentinels wake and watch. So it is that God's peace sentinels the very thoughts of him who makes God his intimate friend. There is no other keeping like God's. We would better commit to him the keeping of our thoughts, and he will guard them for us. It was a prayer of Fenelon's: "Take me, O Lord, for I can not lose me, oh, keep me, for I can not keep give myself to thee. And when thou my own self."

RELIGION AND LAUGHTER.

A bigoted Chinese who could never be induced to attend a christian service, went to a missionary and said, "I want to hear about your religion; I have never heard the words of it, but I have heard the laughter in your house and in the houses of my countrymen who have embraced your faith. And if you have anything that makes people so joyous I want it." One crying need in all lands is for more glad christians.

A Maine fur buyer on a sixteen-day trip through the Rangeley region this season bought $3,000 worth of furs. On a second trip he secured $2,000 worth more. For fisher alone he has paid $1,200 this season, paying for two skins alone $60 each. At the present time fisher is the most valuable of Maine furs with the exception of silver gray or black fox. Otter is a close second in value. Two trappers, who have been in the Cupsuptic pond region, about twelve miles above the lake of that name, recently brought out seventeen fisher, twenty-one sable, thirty-five ermine and a little other fur.—Lewiston (Me.) Journal.

"KNOW YE NOT?"

Did you ever notice the expression in the writings of the Apostle Paul and particularly how it is repeated in the first letter he wrote to the church of Corinth. "Know ye not that your bodies are the temple of God?" In other words, do ye not know that all life is a sacred thing? "Know ye not that a little leaven leaveneth the whole lump?" In other words, do ye not know that life in its influence is subtle. "Know ye not that they that run in the race but one receiveth the prize?" In other words, do ye not know that life is successful only as it is a struggle? "Know ye not that the unrighteous shall not inherit the kingdom of God?" In other words, does not common sense tell you that whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap? And when we read these signposts of eternity do we not wonder at the thousands of young people who travel face forward toward the precipice over which the warnings have hung for centuries?

RELIGIOUS NOTES.

Rev. Charles Stelzle, in a recent article on "The Church as a Religious Force," says: "In 1800 only seven persons out of every one hundred of the total population were members of the church; in 1850 there were fifteen to every one hundred; in 1870, seventeen; in 1880, twenty; in 1890, twenty-two; in 1900, twenty-four; in 1910, twenty-four."

Mr. Sharp, head of one of the post-office departments, in the national capital, was chairman of the committee which made the rules for the new parcels post. He suggested that "pistols, snakes and whisky" should be excluded from the parcel post. The postmaster general adopted the suggestion. This prevented the country from being flooded with parcels containing liquor.

As a result of the recent meetings of Evangelist "Billy" Sunday at McKeesport, Pa., a city of 40,000 people, 10,000 persons, or one-fourth the population, professed conversion to Christ.

RULES FOR MAKING SUNSHINE.

When you rise in the morning, form a resolution to make the day a happy one to a fellow creature. It is easily done; a left-off garment to a man who needs it, a kind word to the sorrowful, an encouraging expression to the striving, trifles in themselves light as air, will do, at least for the twenty-four hours. You send one person, only one, happy through the day—there is three hundred and sixty-five during the course of the year; and suppose you live only forty years after you commence that practice, you have made fourteen thousand six hundred human beings happy at all events for a time. Now is not this simple? It is too short for a sermon, too homely for ethics, too easily accomplished for you to say, "I would if I could."—Sydney Smith.

THE LAMP OF LIFE.

The comparison of human life to the burning and going out of a lamp was familiar with Latin authors, as we know by the term senes decrepiti. Plutarch explains the origin of this metaphor thus: The ancients never extinguished their lamps, but suffered them to go out of their own accord—that is, by the last crackle. Hence a lamp just about to expire was said decrepitare, to cease to crackle. Hence, metaphorically, persons on the verge of the grave were called decrepit men.

James Cooper, a promoter of the parcel post system, never saw the inside of a school house until he was fourteen, but so thoroughly has he devoted himself to study that he has a working knowledge of practically all the modern civilized languages. He was born at Nantucket, the son of a printer, and in course of time became a master craftsman himself. The greater part of his education was received in the printing office. At one time he was proofreader in all languages in the government printing office at Washington.

MARBLE ONCE POOR PRINTER

New Secretary of Interstate Commerce Commission Has Risen

BY FORCE OF ABILITY

San Francisco, March 14.—John H. Marble of San Francisco, secretary of the interstate commerce commission, appointed a member of the commission to succeed Franklin K. Lane, who became secretary of the interior, was associated with Lane for several years in the practice of law in San Francisco. He was formely a linotype operator, and while operating a machine in a local job office, studied law and was admitted to practice.

When Lane was appointed a member of the interstate commerce commission, Marble was given the position of private secretary to Lane, later appointed attorney and then secretary of the commission.

JOHN H. MARBLE.

He also traveled throughout the country for the commission, gathering important statistics, which were used in its activities.

He attained nation-wide prominence when appointed attorney for the senatorial committee that investigated the charges against Senator William Lorimer of Illinois, who was deposed by the senate after a trial in which Marble showed much ability.

He resigned his position with the interstate commerce commission at the time of the investigation, but was prevailed on later to return as the commission's secretary.

Marble came to San Francisco from South Dakota, where he was a college professor and an editor. On his arrival in San Francisco he worked in a printing office, affiliating with San Francisco Typographical union No. 21.

His ability as a speaker won him recognition in the organization and he was given many duties, serving as a delegate to the labor council and on important committees.

During his residence in San Francisco he followed public questions closely, and was often invited to express his views on the rostrum. He frequently contributed newspaper articles on public topics.

THE FORTY YEAR TEST.

An article must have exceptional merit to survive for a period of forty years. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy was first offered to the public in 1872. From a small beginning it has grown in favor and popularity until it has attained a world-wide reputation. You will find nothing better for a cough or cold. Try it and you will understand why it is a favorite after a period of more than forty years. It not only gives relief—it cures. For sale by all dealers.

KILL TRILLIONS OF BIG HERRING

The Ice Forming Suddenly Catches Schools of Them in Frozen Bay

OF ALASKAN WATERS

Klawack Bay, Alaska, March 11.—Probably the greatest fish killing ever known took place here on Prince of Wales island last week, when at one stroke it is estimated that 2,000,000,000,000 good sized herring lost their lives. Capt. Simon Brunn and the officers of the steamship Northland had the remarkable experience of navigating their vessel through miles of the dead fish.

For three days the bay had been full of schools of herring so dense that fish were often thrown out of the water. A day before the Northland arrived a sudden freeze caught the herring in the narrow necked harbor before they could escape.

The freeze came with great suddenness and about six inches of ice formed in the harbor. Millions of the herring could be seen fighting for a last desperate chance of getting out of the inclosed water before being frozen.

When Capt. Brunn arrived with the Northland the tide had receded and for twenty to fifty feet on the beach and several hundred feet out into the water for three miles around the harbor lay the frozen fish. Measurements were made and it was found that the herring lay tightly packed for an average depth of three feet.

The greatest chance in the world for obtaining fresh fish without a bit of work was lost. The cannery people took all they could, but the Northland was not equipped to carry them. The fear now is that an epidemic of disease may break out following the decay of the dead fish.

Refuses to Continue as Undertaker for Felines

CHICAGO.—"Hereafter police officers will not bury dead cats, unless found upon public highways."

Edward Sieber, chief of police at Wilmette, a suburb of Chicago, nailed this sign on the wall of the police station the other day. Then he sank wearily into a chair.

"That'll hold them for a while, I guess," he said with a sigh. "I have been the official undertaker for the last pet cat, and hereafter Wilmette people will have to bury their own pets."

Nine lives apparently is not enough for the felines of Wilmette, as during the last two weeks twenty-five or thirty furry pets have succumbed.

Chief of Police Sieber told of the woes of being an undertaker to cats.

"During the last couple of weeks," he said, "I have been called upon at all hours of the day and night to bury dead cats.

"At first I would leave the work of the office and comply with the request of some woman who informed me with a lachrymose voice that her pet cat had died. But when they started calling me from my slumbers, and asking me to come and 'bury poor Tom' right away, I hung up this sign."

Recent rains are partly responsible for the increase in the cat death rate, according to the chief. The rains have filled empty salmon cans with water, and the cats, though accustomed to "dry" Wilmette, must drink. The water is often poison, death ensuing within a few hours.

As far as could be learned, no pedi-freed felines have succumbed, the "mortality" being confined to cats of common degree.

An Everyday View of the Next Sunday School Lesson

March 16, 1913—The Test of Abraham's Faith.

Lesson Text, Genesis 22:1-19. Golden Text, Hosea 6:6: I desire goodness, and not sacrifice; and the knowledge of God more than burnt offerings.

It may be difficult to detect the relation between our last lesson and this. One week ago we saw Abraham standing in the highway, and looking toward Sodom, whose smoke darkened the plain like the smoke of a furnace. Today we see him face to face with the great test of his faith.

But two things have happened in the patriarch's life, both of which have much to do with his subsequent history—the birth of Ishmael and the birth of Isaac. The former was the son of Hagar, an Egyptian servant, while the latter was the son of Sarah and the child of promise. Ishmael, being the older, according to oriental custom was in the line of inheritance, a position destined of God for Isaac, the younger son. The result was that Ishmael was expelled and Isaac installed in his place.

Apparent Injustice to Ishmael Proves to Be Blessing in Disguise.

The change involved no injustice. God calls no man to a service for which he has no fitness. Ishmael was designed to hold a great place among the nations of the earth, but his future and that of Isaac lay in different directions. Each had his own work and each must follow the bent of his own life. Ishmael remained in the wilderness and succeeded as a hunter. Better to do that than fail as a shepherd. Failure is largely due to a lack of adaptation between the man and his work. Jonathan had a place on the field of battle, but his son, lame on his feet, could serve his country best at home. The lesson sometimes comes too late. Many a one has entered upon his life's work, only to know that saddest of all awakenings, the difference between an occupation and a calling.

God could not have done Ishmael a kinder service than exclude him from among the leaders of the church. It may have seemed unjust, but God is never unjust. Our severest hardships may be mercies in disguise. Moses dies on Nebo in sight of the promised land, but is not permitted to enter. It must have been a staggering blow to the lawgiver, and how he pleaded against it! But his Friend above knew best, and the things that his servant could do had been done. Another life lay beyond the Jordan, and Joshua, not he, was able to live it. Nebo was more merciful than the slaughter fields of Canaan. His mission had become rest. Death solves life.

Abraham Suffers Supreme Test of His Faith in God.

Abraham at this time must have been happy and contented. The ambition of his life had been attained. He was rich and powerful. An army of servants stood ready to execute his commands, and his flocks grazed on a hundred hills. Every passion of his soul had been gratified, and in Isaac lay a future still more glorious.

One day the patriarch seems to have been in a revery, or possibly a day dream, when the voice of God broke in upon his soul, "Abraham." His response was prompt, "Here am I." "Take now thy son, thine only son, whom thou lovest, even Isaac, and get thee into the land of Moriah; and offer him there for a burnt offering upon one of the mountains which I will tell thee of." That was one of the hardest tests ever laid upon a father's heart. All the forces of justice, honor and truth must have seemed in opposition. A hundred reasons could be urged against it. Human sacrifices were not unknown to the patriarch, but they belonged to the heathen, and had no part in Jehovah's service. Moreover, God had assured him that a multitude countless as the very stars were to perpetuate his name through the line of Isaac. His death meant the obliteration of the one God, and that the world would be left to stagger on in the darkness of its own despair. And that other argument, before which all else was dumb—a father's love—must have appealed with trumpet tongue to spare his life. But whatever the patriarch may have thought, he said nothing and only prepared to obey. Men of action always have the least to say.

That three days' journey is one of the most pathetic incidents in all history. Isaac must have been more than 20 years of age, quite old enough to know that something unusual was about to take place; but he made no inquiry until the end was reached. That journey is typical of human life. Our heaviest burdens are borne in silence. God and we ourselves alone know what they are.

At last Abraham and Isaac reach the summit of the hill and the final test has come. Just which was the stronger, father or son, it would be difficult to say. Josephus, the Jewish historian, gives a fancied discussion between the two, but some things are only weakened by words, and this is one. Again the voice is heard: "Abraham, Abraham . . . lay not thy hand upon the lad, neither do thou anything unto him, for now I know that thou fearest God." There is no joy like that of reaction. Abraham and Isaac must have been nearer each other ever after. Together they had gone through the furnace and together they rejoiced on the other side. Abraham had lived the sacrifice. Those three days included all that might have come.

Substitute for Isaac Type of the One Great Substitute.

Suffering involves more than the mere test of faith. It either makes character or unmakes it. It does not reveal us to God, but it may reveal God to us. Abraham went down from Moriah with a faith in God such as he had never felt before. Isaac had been saved, but a sacrifice was not wanting upon the mountain. The ram caught in the thicket was but a type of that other substitute, slain for the salvation of men. The shadows of this incident are flung forward and find their reality at the cross. Isaac is a figurative ancestor of the Christ. The only son of his father, he laid himself upon the altar ready to die at the command of God. God spared the sacrifice, but the Lamb of God suffered in his stead.—The Continent.

ANCIENT EGYPTIAN SOLD.

Man 6,000 Years Old Disposed of in London for $200.

London, March 14.—A man who lived in Egypt 6,000 years ago was sold this week in London for $200.

The mummy of the pre-dynastic period was part of the DeRustafjaell Egyptian collection, which was sold before a gathering representing the leading museums and collectors of the world.

This collection was considered one of the finest in existence, and there was eager bidding for some of the pieces, but, on the whole, the prices realized were not high. As one dealer expressed it, there is at present "an awful slump in mummies."

Private collectors bore away the choicest relics, but several of the museums, including the British museum, enriched their Egyptian rooms at the sale.

WRONGLY REPORTED DEAD.

Man Disproves Fact by Returning Home From Hospital.

Shamokin, Pa., March 14.—Boarders at the home of Joseph Bressi, this city, were panic-stricken upon seeing Dominick Bressi, whom they had mourned as dead, walk into the room.

Several weeks ago he was taken to a Philadelphia hospital, suffering with a serious illness. A short time later a letter announced that he had died and had been buried in Potter's field.

When the excitement created by his appearance had subsided it was learned that he had just returned from the hospital, where he had fully recovered. The hospital authorities had mistaken him for another man and the death had been wrongly recorded.

The Daven-o

The dictionary of popular opinion says the word "DAVEN-O" means the highest grade upholstered davenport, having concealed within it a genuine metal bed.

This remarkable invention stands alone in the world as a successful combination of bed and davenport, with absolutely no sacrifice of appearance or comfort either.

Economy of Space---Yet Solid Comfort

The principle upon which the DAVEN-O is constructed is fully protected by many patents and positively cannot be found in any other combination bed. It is actually a full-size, real bed for constant use (not for emergencies only), to all effects like a stationary bed, so concealed in a luxurious davenport that even an expert could not detect its double use.

On account of the perfection of the DAVEN-O as a davenport it has gone into the finest homes in America. The DAVEN-O is simply indispensable in small quarters, and no matter how many rooms you have there are always occasions when an extra bed is needed.

Remember the points that make it different from all others:

1. Working parts--Nothing but a hinge. Cannot get out of order.
2. You do not sleep on the upholstery, but on regular springs with thick mattress.
3. It is not to be made up at night, but in the morning, like any other bed.
4. All bed clothes, even pillows, are retained in bed, not stored away.
5. The bed part is made entirely of metal—therefore, perfectly sanitary.

A thousand other advantages will come to your mind as you look at it and compare it with other makes.

Famed Prima Donna Would Call Lovers "Mental Mates."

Boston, Mass., March 14.—Mme. Lina Cavalieri, the famed prima donna, who is here to fill an engagement, when asked as to the truth of a rumor that she and M. Muratore, the French tenor, who is to appear here, are husband and wife, replied:

"Married to M. Muratore? I should say not. I do not believe in marriage for a grand opera singer. An artist belongs to the public. She can not also belong to a husband. Prima donna husbands are the joke of the world.

"The affinity idea is all right, but rather than call people soul mates, I think they should be called mental mates."

There is nothing more discouraging than a chronic disorder of the stomach. Beck, of Wakelee, Mich., "I bought a package of Chamberlain's Tablets, and since using them I have felt perfectly well. I had previously used any number of different medicines, but none of them were of any lasting benefit." For sale by all dealers.

NEWS AND VIEWS OF THE FARMER

A COLLIE ON THE FARM

There is nothing more companionable when rambling through the woods or walking in the country than a fine dog. On the farm a dog—a good one—is as essential as other live stock.

There is no animal more intelligent or sagacious than a collie, and no dog is more suitable for the farmer. Collies are very beautiful, graceful in every movement and are active all the time. Their heavy coat adds to their beauty, and enables them to withstand all kinds of exposure. A collie is easily taught, and soon learns to do useful duties about the place without bidding. They think and act for themselves in an emergency, making most excellent watch dogs, and always show loyalty and love for their master.

If you have never taken a fancy to a dog just get a good intelligent collie and you will in a short time think nearly as much of him as any member of the family. They make fine companions for women and children. They are very affectionate and their affections are strong and lasting.

The rough coated Scotch collie is one of the oldest breed of dogs. Its history extends way back into ancient times when dogs of this breed were used by the shepherds to care for their flocks. It is today used for this same purpose not only in the West among the mountains and the plains, but in England and Scotland, as well as in every other country under the sun, where they have made themselves indispensable. They are not only very useful around sheep, but can easily be taught to drive cattle and to keep a general watch over them, as well as of hogs and of the poultry. Many a collie has learned to keep fowls out of the garden and away from the front of the house without ever doing any damage to them.

The price of collies, as with fowls, depends greatly upon the quality and what they are wanted for. Some of our highest show types of collies are the most intelligent and useful around the farm. Good puppies sell to the farmers at from $8.00 to $10.00 each. The fancier who desires to raise collie puppies pays from $10 to $150 for puppies not over two to four weeks old.

One collie was brought to this country from England several years ago for $5,000.00, and one came last year at the reported price of $6,500.00. Every year several change hands at $1,000.00 each, and many at $100.00 up.

Collies can be trained easily and quickly, to do many useful things, but there is one thing that should be borne in mind, and that is—the training should be done by only one person. Do not let every member of the family take a hand in the training or the result will be a spoiled dog. When well trained, no farmer will ever regret having spent a little time and money on a collie.

The Value of the Milk Shed

Every farmer should build a small shed or compartment of some kind in which to stand the cows at milking time. The nearer the barn the better.

It should be well ventilated in the Summer and made warm during the Winter months by setting up fodder around it or lining it with building paper or roofing material.

The shed may be any size desired, but ample room for one cow is all that is necessary. Have nails arranged on the wall for hanging milk pails in places of safety while the cows are being led to and from the shed.

If there are any sore teats, caked udders or other ailments to be treated the milk shed offers a safe place in which to do it quickly and any trouble with the animals in hand will cause no disturbance among the other members of the herd. Spraying solution is also easier applied in the shed than anywhere else.

Where one feeds the cows at milking time the milk shed removes the difficulty of feeding the cow that is being milked in sight of the other animals. Some cows will fret and worry away a large portion of their milk if another cow is being fed in sight or hearing of them. Then, feeding the cow in the milk shed makes it unnecessary to use so many feed troughs.

By keeping it well cleaned out, and properly drained the milk shed is always ready to lead the cow into and milk under agreeable and sanitary conditions. If it be in the Summer time the shed may be darkened and the pesky flies thus gotten rid of, which means a lot of solid comfort to both the cow and the milker as well as a greater amount of milk. With proper ventilation such a shed is also much cooler than the sweltering dairy barn where the animal's breath combined with the heat of their bodies contribute liberally toward the maintenance of a high temperature.—M. A. Coverdell.

GRAFTING NUT TREES

WOOD OF THE PREVIOUS SEASON IS BEST FOR GRAFTING AND SHOULD BE TAKEN ONLY FROM THE VERY BEST AND MOST CAREFULLY SELECTED PARENT TREES.

BY C. A. REED.

In its modifications cleft grafting has been longer employed than many other methods of propagation.

It is performed during the late winter months just as the buds begin to swell, or very early in the growing period. At that time the upward flow of sap is most rapid and the union will be accomplished most quickly. Scions for any kind of grafting should be selected from the growth of the last season. Terminal twigs were formerly used almost exclusively and are still preferred by some propagators. But, as the bud at the end of the branch rarely produces a strong shoot, ordinarily drying up and falling off instead, terminal twigs are no longer used to a large extent.

Obviously, two scions placed in one cleft double the chance of success. With an ordinary wrapping of waxed cloth further attention to the graft itself will not be needed. If wound with tout material the bandages should be severed as soon as growth has begun, when the weaker of the two scions should be cut away. If both scions are allowed to remain, the formation of a fork between the two will be inevitable and splitting very apt to follow. A single scion affords a much better opportunity for the development of a symmetrical head and there is less danger of crowding than when two scions are left.

Prepare the scion by sharpening its lower end with the grafting knife into the form of a wedge made thicker on the side which will be outermost when in position. Insert the wedge end of the scion in the cleft of the stock so that the inner bark of its thick side will be in close contact with the inner bark of the stock. The scion should be pushed into the cleft until the cut surface of the stock is on a level with the base of the first bud. It will do no harm if it goes slightly deeper.

The operation of whip grafting is usually performed during the latter part of the dormant season, at any point in the trunk from immediately below the surface to several inches underground. For this method of propagation the stock and the scion should be of very nearly the same size, preferably not more than three-fourths of an inch in diameter nor smaller than a lead pencil. With the knife held so as to make an upward incision, cut the stock entirely across at a long angle. At about one-third the distance from the upper end of the cut make an incision parallel with the grain. Cut the scion at as nearly the same angle as possible and make a similar incision in the cut surface one-third the distance from the upper end of the cut. Push the cut surfaces together in such a way that the tongue of the scion made by the incision will be crowded into the groove made by the incision in the stock. Bind the two parts together and pack firmly with earth. When grafted by the whip-graft method the young trees will require little subsequent attention other than pruning and ordinary cultivation.

To make grafting wax mix together thoroughly four parts (by weight) resin, two parts beeswax, and one part tallow. A harder wax for use in warm weather is made of the following. Resin, four pounds; beeswax, one pound; raw linseed oil, one-half to one pint.

To prepare either formula melt the ingredients together, pour into water, and pull. Rub the hands with oil or grease before using to prevent sticking. By using the second formula the proportion of oil will depend upon the season, a greater quantity being necessary in cooler weather.

For grafting cloth tear thin calico or cheap muslin into strips 12 to 18 inches wide, after which it is saturated in melted wax, drained, and allowed to cool. When thoroughly saturated, remove from it, while still warm, the excess of hot wax.

Alfalfa for the Poultry

By Mrs. A. J. Wilder.

Alfalfa has come into great favor as a food for poultry, both for the laying hens and as a food for young chicks or growing stock. The protein in alfalfa is about the same as wheat bran and is a bone and muscle or lean meat grower.

Green alfalfa and a mixture of finely cracked grains, mostly corn, to balance the elements in the alfalfa with skimmilk and fine grit and shells is a good ration for the young chicks. It is a fine ration for the laying hens also, except that the grains need not be cracked.

If allowed a run on a green alfalfa field the hens will eat less grain. Care must be taken not to let them pasture on a field of alfalfa too long as they will kill out the alfalfa by eating out the crown of the plant, and if this crown is destroyed the plant is killed.

Alfalfa hay can be cut into one-fourth inch lengths, steamed and fed in a mash. It is nearly as good fed in this way as the green alfalfa and will answer for green food in the winter.

The process of steaming is as follows: Cut the alfalfa in one-fourth inch lengths and put in a tub or bucket, pour as much boiling water over it as it will absorb, cover closely and let it stand for thirty minutes before feeding. This is a good addition to the mash and when used only a little bran will be necessary in the mash. Alfalfa can also be fed alone and without steaming.

Green alfalfa has a good effect on the general health of the fowls, and another good reason for raising it is the great amount of food it will furnish per acre. Rich soils will furnish four crops in one year with a total yield of six to eight tons to the acre. This will furnish considerable feed for the poultry and will save the expense of buying bran, which nearly every farmer has to do.

If we can raise alfalfa to take the place of bran we can raise all the poultry feed we need, and this every farmer should try to accomplish as a saving of expense. One is inclined to think that it is just as well to sell something from the farm and buy to complete a food ration, but we remember, when we buy we pay several extra profits between the man who raised it and ourselves.

The best way is to raise everything that is fed out on the farm, and by raising alfalfa to take the place of bran and raising corn, oats and wheat we have a perfect food ration for the poultry or any other kind of stock.

A HOUSEHOLD ECONOMY.

Now is a good time to study the matter of buying a small home canning outfit for saving the surplus vegetables for next winters use. There are some good makes on the market, costing from a few dollars up. They will save many crops for winter use at comparatively small cost. A gardener told me the other day that he canned peas, beans, corn, etc., in quantity for use during the winter and so far had experienced no loss. He used a canning outfit costing about twelve dollars and put the material in glass jars.—LeRoy Cady.

Tulsa, Oklahoma, will be the center of the agricultural world during the fall of 1913. The International Dry-Farming Congress, which is a very important back-to-the farm movement, will hold its eighth annual session in that city in October.

TREATING SHEEP SCAB

Dipping in a reliable dip is the proper treatment for sheep afflicted with sheep scab.

Use a dip made of lime and sulphur, tobacco and sulphur, or one of the coal tar dips.

Remove all sediment from the lime and sulphur dip, as it injures the wool.

Tobacco dips should never be boiled.

For a general dip a tobacco or coal tar preparation is to be preferred to lime and sulphur, as a lime and sulphur dip has little effect in destroying the sheep tick or louse.

A fresh solution should be used for the second dipping. This is absolutely essential if the lime and sulphur or the tobacco and sulphur are to be used.

Mix the dip well in the vat.

It is better to use warm water than cold water in dipping sheep, as warm water cuts the grease and allows the dip to get to all parts of the skin of the animal.

The correct temperature for a dip is from 100 to 105 degrees Fahrenheit.

Sheep can be dipped in the winter if warm days are selected for that purpose.

If the sheep are badly afflicted with scab, the thick scabs should be softened previous to the dipping of the sheep by pouring some of the dip on these places and rubbing them with some smooth instrument, or the scabs can be softened while the sheep are being dipped, by rubbing the thick scabs with a brush. Care should be taken, however, not to draw blood, as on coagulation it will protect the mite from the dip.

Lambs do not need to be dipped for so long a time as older sheep, as their wool is short. They are also more delicate in constitution, hence can not stand the dipping as well as older sheep.

Always water sheep before dipping, otherwise they may drink the dip which is sometimes found in little puddles in the dripping pens.

Each sheep should be held in the dip from two to three minutes, and the head quickly immersed once or twice just before the sheep leaves the vat.

A sheep in moderate length of wool and allowed to drip thoroughly after being dipped will carry away from two to three quarts of the dip. A sheep after being shorn will carry away about a quart of the dip.

The question should not be, how many sheep can be dipped in a day, but how well can they be dipped.

If scabby sheep are taken direct from a pasture and dipped, they should not be returned to that place for a period of thirty days. Heavy rains are said, however, to disinfect open fields. If the sheep have been housed in buildings prior to the dipping, these buildings should be disinfected before the sheep are returned to them.

Purchase no proprietary dips except those having the approval of your state agricultural department.

Use all proprietary dips exactly according to directions.

THE RAMIE INDUSTRY

BY L. H. DEWEY.

Ramie fiber is used in this country principally in millinery goods, knit underwear, dress goods, for mixing with silk, and for shoe thread. It is suitable for dress goods, plushes, upholstery materials, portieres, table napery, incandescent gas mantles, and nearly all lines of goods now made from silk or linen yarns. It is distinctly different, however, from either silk or linen. It is especially suitable for goods in which strength, nonelasticity, absorbent properties, and luster are required.

Ramie has been an important fiber-producing plant in China for many centuries. Experiments in the cultivation of ramie have been carried on in this country for many years. Although none of them thus far have led to a commercial industry of any great extent, interest in the possibility of cultivating ramie continues keen.

Ramie fiber, long, strong, durable, light, lustrous, and nonelastic, is in some respects the most attractive plant fiber of commerce. The plant is a perennial belonging to the nettle family. Several kinds of ramie goods are appearing in increasing quantities in our markets. Some mills are now engaged in the manufacture of these goods in the United States, and others are being equipped for the work.

Ramie is cultivated commercially in China, in Japan, including Formosa, in Korea, and to a limited extent in India and Africa. A warm, moist climate is essential for the successful cultivation of this plant. Cold checks it and severe drouth kills it. It is cultivated in warm temperate climates rather than in the Tropics. Unless grown under irrigation or on moist bottom lands along rivers it requires at least 40 inches of well-distributed rainfall. Its roots are injured where the ground freezes more than three inches. There should be a period of at least five months free from frosts. In the Tropics it grows throughout the year unless checked by drought, but its productiveness is not thereby very much increased.

Ramie requires a rich, deep, moist soil, well drained, yet not subject to drought. A dark, rich, sandy loam is best. Rich bottom lands free from overflow are suitable for it. The plant will not grow in undrained swamps or on stiff clays, and its cultivation is not profitable on light, sandy soils unless heavily fertilized. Experiments conducted by private individuals as well as under state and government authority, have demonstrated that it can be grown from Maryland to Texas; also in California and Porto Rico.

MORE HORSES THAN EVER.

The introduction of the automobile on farms of the United States has not displaced the horse or mule for the latest estimate of the number of these animals on farms January 1 this year, shows more horses than ever before, except in 1900 and 1910, and more mules than in any other year on record.

Horses and mules were of greater value than ever before, except in 1911. The number of horses increased 58,000 over last year and mules increased 24,000.

While the number of beasts of burden on the farm increased, the number of food animals decreased. Milch cows decreased 702,000 since January 1, 1912; other cattle decreased 1,230,000; sheep decreased 880,000 and swine decreased 4,232,000.

CONCRETE FOR RAILROAD TIES.

President Hill, of the Great Northern Railroad, says that cement will take the place of wood as ties. He declared recently, that the growing use of concrete railroad ties would do more to eliminate train wrecks than any other factor. Mr. Hill is an enthusiastic cement man and is using the material on his railroads to a large extent. He said eventually concrete would replace the old-fashioned wooden tie and that when his present plans are consummated the Great Northern will have concrete ties from Minneapolis to Seattle.

Don't kick the cow or thrash her with the milking stool when she seems cross. Cows are very sensitive creatures and such treatment only makes them worse. Besides being cruel it interferes with the flow of milk.

The reason Europeans get such large returns from a small area is that they apply immense quantities of manure and then thoroughly cultivate the crop.

Mustard is said to be a powerful stimulant of egg production.

HARD NUTS TO CRACK

A country school teacher, Miss Susan Jones, thinks country teachers ought to learn a great many things about the farm that they do not know before they try to teach farm boys and girls. We quite agree with Susan when she says they ought to be able to identify the common trees, plants, weeds, birds, insects and other animals; to know the habits of each, those that are injurious and the means to destroy them; those that are a benefit and how to protect them.

Miss Jones asks what per cent of the country teachers can make a thorough study of the soil in their respective districts; tell which of the ten elements are abundant in the soil and which are lacking, and how to increase those that are deficient?

How many can select and judge seed corn, test its vitality; name the different breeds of cattle seen, tell which are best for the dairy and which for the beef herd?

How many know the value of the Babcock test and scales to the dairyman and can make a milk test? If the farmer does not know the teacher should be able to show him whether or not he is chained to the profitless cow.

The teacher should be able to explain a balanced ration for the dairy cows, stock cattle, horses, hogs and sheep and know the weights of different kinds of feed to secure the right proportion of protein and carbohydrates for the best results.

Miss Jones says any bright teacher who is willing to work can learn these things by studying the course recommended by the State Agricultural Colleges, even if they cannot attend the regular courses. But will they? And if they do not, will teachers who do learn these things take their places? We think so.

MONEY FROM HOGS ON FORAGE.

The Missouri Experiment Station has given out the results of an experiment lasting three years which shows large profits from feeding hogs on forage crops.

The average income per acre from clover forage was $34.11, from rape and oats $23.68, from corn and cowpeas $29.98 and from blue-grass $17.71.

The estimates are all made on the basis of 60 cents a bushel for the corn fed and 6 cents a pound for the pork produced. The results are important as indicating what may be accomplished when the hogs themselves do all the harvesting.

PROTECTING OUR BIRDS

BY T. S. PALMER.

National bird reservations have been established during the last ten years for the purpose of affording protection to important breeding colonies of water birds or to furnish refuges for migratory species on their northern and southern flights or during winter.

Among the small reservations may be mentioned Green Bay, Wis., two acres in extent; Pelican Island, Fla., more than five acres; Stump Lake, more than twenty-seven acres. The Niobrara Reservation, Neb., is a large reservation, including almost 12,000 acres. Klamath Lake and Malheur Lake Reservations in Oregon each comprise extensive strips of marsh lands; the Yukon Delta Reservation in Alaska includes the swampy lands between the Yukon and Kuskokwine Rivers; and the Hawaiian Islands Reservation includes the islands in the mid-Pacific extending over five degrees of longitude. The birds on these reservations are protected by a special act of Congress, and by state laws.

The bird reservations are grouped in six districts, as follows: (1) The Gulf district, including ten reservations in Florida, four in Louisiana, and one in Porto Rico; (2) the Lake district, including two in Michigan, two in North Dakota, and one in Wisconsin; (3) the Mountain district, including twelve in the Rocky Mountain States, South Dakota, and Nebraska; (4) the Pacific district, including three in California, four in Oregon, and eight in Washington; (5) the Alaska district, including eight reservations; and (6) the Hawaiian district, including one reservaton. Wardens are stationed on the more important reservations and the National Association of Audubon Societies, which has always taken an active part in securing the establishment of these reserves, cooperates actively with the government in protecting the birds.

Many rare birds important for their plumage as well as other characteristics are being protected on these reservations. In the Gulf district brown pelicans, herons of various kinds, ducks, terns, laughing gulls, and many others find refuge.

The Pacific district, including both coast and island groups, shelters great rookeries of sea birds as well as shore varieties. On some of the islands in this district the peculiar rhinoceros auklet nests in considerable numbers.

Petrels, gulls, cormorants, guillemots, puffins, rhinoceros auklets and other birds, are found in enormous colonies in the Alaska reservations.

Birds of peculiar interest and rare species make their home in the Hawaiian Reservation. Here also is found a very rare seal not known elsewhere.

Besides the birds on these reservations occur other forms of wild life. Manatees and porpoises find complete protection in the Gulf district, and in the Alaska refuges there live great numbers of sea lions.

BOSSY GOT EVEN.

In Lanton, N. J., an automobile killed a calf while its mother was grazing beside the road. Since that time the cow becomes frantic at the sight of every automobile that comes along. Recently her owner was taking the cow out to pasture when a speeding car appeared. The cow broke away, dashed at the car, was knocked down but charged again and quickly put the machine out of business. The mechanism was so deranged that the car had to be taken to a garage for repairs.

If the udder of the fresh cow is in good condition and shows no trace of garget the calf should be removed after it has nursed once or twice.

The floor of the poultry house should never be allowed to become foul or damp. Either one is a disease breeder. Clean out often and add plenty of fresh material. A few baskets of sawdust will help.

A little granulated charcoal mixed in the soft feed is excellent in cases of diarrhoea in the chicks.

Agriculture, the first industry to be learned by man, was the last to be developed.

BIG CLAIMS ARE FILED IN COURT

Creditors Prepare to Prove Accounts in Kerr Murray Case.

OTHER COURT MATTER

In the circuit court today creditors of the Kerr Murray Manufacturing company began preparations to prove their claims against the concern and a number of big accounts were filed through Attorneys Barrett and Morris, the aggregate running more than $300,000.

The largest of these is one filed by George W. Beers, trustee for the creditors and bondholders, who holds a general mortgage for the benefit of all and who asks a judgment for $300,000.

The Bass Foundry & Machine company is another big creditor and its demand is for $23,500 secured by bonds bought at par in making a credit extension in August, 1911. The Hamilton National bank filed two claims of $5,000 each. James M. Barrett stated that the suits were filed just to get the creditors in line for a settlement of the company's affairs.

Rapid Fire Divorce Work.

Three divorces were heard and decrees granted in forty-five minutes in the circuit court today. There was no defense in any of them and it was necessary to hear comparatively little testimony. Florence Hedges got a divorce from John B. Hedges, Gertrude Pierce was divorced from Celsus Pierce and Emma D. Lanning obtained a decree divorcing her from Ernest H. Lanning.

In the superior court Ollie Morrison secured a divorce from Vern Morrison.

Ordered Borton to Close.

At the close of a hearing in the circuit court Judge John W. Eggeman revoked the saloon license held by Isaac Borton, but he was allowed to continue business at Grand and Harrison streets until tomorrow, when the judgment must ben entered.

A motion for a new trial will be made aand the revocation is the first made on the application of the police. Borton was selling liquor on Sunday and was convicted in the city court, but appealed his case and Chief of Police Abbott filed charges against him and gave bond to prosecute the case and to pay the costs in event of his failure to secure a revocation.

Arrange for Conference.

Arrangements were completed today for a joint conference here on March 24 between the Allen county commissioners and those of Paulding and Van Wert counties, Ohio, on the Flat Rock ditch.

Pays Tribute to Late Mrs. Taylor

The Woman's League has adopted the following memorial and tribute of appreciation of the late Mrs. Fanny W. Taylor, wife of Judge Robert S. Taylor, whose death occurred a few days ago:

"The passing of Mrs. Fanny W. Taylor marks the close of one more life whose influence was widely felt in the formative work of the Woman's League.

"Intellectually gifted, witty and clever in conversation or discussion, a deep and discriminating reader, she was prominent among Fort Wayne's cultivated women of that earlier day when women's clubs were a new idea, and she brought to the consideration of any subject a keenness of perception and a sane balance of judgment that was as notable as it was valuable.

"Never aggressively a leader, she was yet in the foreground of the federation movement some twenty-three or twenty-four years ago, and stood shoulder to shoulder with that now lessening group of women who first gave to Fort Wayne clubs a definite and enviable standing in the intellectual life of Indiana.

"She was a charter member of the Morning Musical, Fortnightly and Saturday clubs, and, until her health began to fail, was throughout her fifty years' residence identified with every broad philanthropy and charity in which Fort Wayne women have engaged.

"Though a home-loving and home-keeping woman extensive travel had given her a wide circle of acquaintance and correspondence in other centers, which included many well-known and interesting literary lights. Possibly only those who have at some time enjoyed a period of friendly correspondence with Mrs. Taylor may realize her remarkable gifts in that much neglected but most gentle art of letter-writing.

"She was a most ardent lover, student and protector of our native song birds, and an enthusiastic, practical horticulturist, enjoying signal success with many species of plants seemingly impossible to the average amateur.

"The keynote of her character, however, greater than any merely intellectual quality, or circumstance of life, yet combining all these into her personality as true woman, true wife, true mother, and, most rare of all, true friend, was a just and steadfast loyalty.

"Her friendship, which, once given, was never withdrawn nor relinquished, was a privilege always prized, a quiet influence ever present in thought. Based always on intrinsic quality, regardless of life's externals, it was an enduring bond, an anchor to the heart, regardless of distance, time, change or circumstance.

"We who have felt that bond through many years now pay this last tribute to the memory of one of Fort Wayne's noblest and truest women, Fanny Wright Taylor."

AUTO OWNERS TO MEET THE BOARD

Big Machines Can Not Be Run Over Roads for the Present.

WILL ISSUE WARNING

Efforts to protect the public roads have reached a stage where the owners of big automobiles will be forbidden to use them while the ground is soft and unfit for heavy traffic and a meeting will be held in the court of the county commissioners tomorrow at which owners of the heavy machines have been asked to be present.

The action to be taken at this gathering will be the first of the kind in the history of the county and it is called for the reason that the members of the board desire to treat owners fairly and don't want them to be arrested and fined for violations of the law that have been overlooked in the past.

While all owners of heavy machines are included in the list of persons who will be warned against using the roads, the movement is directed principally against the real estate men who make a specialty of handling farm lands and of hauling their prospective customers from point to point in their immense motor cars.

There is no intention, the members of the board say, to inflict any unnecessary hardship on any of the real estate dealers, but farmers and team owners complain that while they are denied the privilege of using the roads these autos are sent tearing over them and do immensely more damage than could possibly be inflicted by a team of horses and a heavily laden wagon.

Investigation proves that the roads are in bad condition and the county commissioners are in absolute control and are backed by the road superintendents. The penalty for driving a heavily laden vehicle over a road at proscribed times is a fine of from $5 to $50 and the commissioners say they will file affidavits for violations.

EARTH'S TREMORS VIOLENT.

Washington and Cleveland Get Records of Earthquake Shocks.

Washington, March 14.—Violent earthquake shocks, apparently originating within 1,500 miles of Washington, were recorded early today on the seismograph at Georgetown university. The vibrations began at 4:04 o'clock and continued until 5:22.

Cleveland, O., March 14.—Two superimposed earthquake shocks which Father Odenbach, the curator, said probably originated in eastern Asia or Japan, were recorded by the seismograph at St. Ignatius college here today. The first beginning was at 3:06:20 a. m., the maximum shock at 3:43:30 and the end came at 4:48 a. m.

ALL VIENNA SNEEZING.

Severe Epidemic of Influenza in Austrian Capital.

Vienna, Austria, March 14.—The most severe epidemic of influence on record is prevalent in the Austrian capital. Half a million cases have been reported during the past three months, and the epidemic is still taxing the capacity of hospitals, nursing institutions and physicians. The disease is of a peculiarly virulent type, with serious after effects. Doctors hope the setting in of milder weather will diminish the outbreak.

TALK OF BRENNER FOR CITY COUNCIL

Mayoralty Timber Scarce Say Old-Time Party Leaders.

MUCH MERE GOSSIP

Charles F. Brenner, foreman of the machine shops of the Fort Wayne Electric works, is being urged by his friends to enter the race for the nomination for councilman from the Fifth ward during the coming city campaign, and it was announced this morning that he is seriously considering the proposition. Thus far Mr. Brenner is the only Fifth ward man whose name has been mentioned for the council position.

It seems that all of the political organizations in Fort Wayne are experiencing some difficulty in selecting mayoralty timber. The names of several have been rumored about the city, but in most cases personal inquiry made to the men themselves develops the fact that they are not candidates and will not even consider an attempt to land the nomination. Guy Colerick, in the minds of many party leaders, would be an ideal candidate for mayor on the democratic ticket, but Mr. Colerick is not after the place and is working hard for the nomination of somebody else. He is as much interested in securing a good candidate as are the other democratic workers, and he is slated for the office of city chairman, and according to old directors of the party, will be elected to that office next Monday night at the first meeting of the newly elected committee.

Progressives and republicans are up-in-the-air even higher than the democrats. Both parties it is said, realize that the only hope of success is to nominate a citizens' ticket, yet certain factions on each side will not allow the progressives and republicans to get together for the purpose of selecting a mutual ticket.

HOLD UP GRAIN RATES.

Central States Advances Suspended by Commerce Commission.

Washington, March 14.—Increases in freight rates on grain and grain products generally throughout the territory north of the Ohio and east of the Mississippi rivers which were in most cases to have gone into effect tomorrow, were suspended today by the inter-state commerce commission until July 8. The order declares that by the proposed increase "the rights and interests of the public appear to be injuriously affected." Hearings will be held.

THE DAY ON WALL STREET.

New York, March 14.—Announcement overnight of an agreement on the Harriman dissolution plan caused acute weakness at the opening of the stock market today in Southern Pacific, which, in the opinion of some traders, will derive least benefit under the proposed arrangement. The stock declined 2⅝ to 98¾, a new low price for the movement. The whole market was heavy. Union Pacific was the only active stock to open higher, and it soon fell back with the rest of the list. Reading and Canadian Pacific lost a point. New Haven dropped 1½ to 120, a new low figure.
The whole list sagged, and although the market showed some recuperative powers when pressure was relaxed for a time, prices declined again before noon on light offerings.
Bearish sentiment was fostered by the continued tightness of money rates and uneasiness as to the dividend policy of certain corporations. Bonds were steady.

BOARD NOT SURE OF CONTRACTORS

May Not Be Able to Let Contracts for the New Sidewalks.

NEWS OF CITY HALL

Members of the board of public works are not sure that they can get contractors to take the work of putting down the eight miles of sidewalks for which resolutions were confirmed last night, but will make the effort for the benefit of the property owners who are demanding the improvements.
The fact that it was impossible to finish the work last year and that a big sewer contract went begging a few weeks ago when an attempt was made to get bidders on the system in the northwestern part of the city indicates that local contractors have more than they can do. Three miles carried over from last season will complicate the situation.
Those for which resolutions were approved last night are as follows:
Both sides of Washington street, Harmer to Glasgow; west side of Anthony boulevard, Maumee to Selden; both sides of Montgomery, Calhoun to Hanna, seven feet wide from Calhoun to Barr and six feet wide from Barr to Hanna; both sides of Monroe, Berry to Washington; east side of Fairfield avenue, Wayne to Jefferson; both sides of Lavina, Fairfield to the alley east of Broadway; both sides of Broadway, Wall to Dayton, all good sidewalks now down except; north side of Maple avenue, Broadway to Thompson; north side of Cour, from the alley east of Webster to Webster street; from Cour to Organ; Sinclair street, and grading street, from Leona to Runnion; south side of Fourth street, from eighty feet west of Franklin avenue to the first alley west; north side of Spring street, from the east line of Kinnsley's sub-division to Sherman street, west side of Thomas street, from Buchanan to Creighton avenue.
Plans were ordered for sidewalks on the south side of Organ avenue, Beaver to Broadway; south side of High street, Runnion avenue to the G. R. & I. tracks, and on both sides of Chestnut street, Roy to DuBoise, and for a sewer west of Smith street, Eckart to Drexler.
Petitions for paving College street, Berry to Jones, and McClellan street, Lewis to Baker, were received and filed. The request for a sewer in the first alley east of Spy Run avenue, St. Mary's river to Elizabeth street, was taken under advisement.
Clerk Becker was instructed to advertise for bids for the city's portion of the work of the opening of Harrison street beneath the Pennsylvania and Wabash tracks and Taylor street and Thompson avenue beneath the Wabash tracks.
The plat for Lakeside park place, lying north of Lakeside dyke, between Lake and Columbia avenues, extended, was approved. The replatting of that portion of Lakeside park addition lying along Anthony boulevard is being blocked by one of the twenty-seven property owners affected. It is proposed to replat the lots so that all of them will face the boulevard and a strip twenty-five feet in width may be given to the city so that the boulevard may be made 100 feet wide.
The Lakeside and Forest Park Improvement association filed a request that the board order the installation of pumps at the mouth of the Tecumseh street and Forest park sewers and to assess the cost against the property that would be drained. The matter was taken under advisement.

About 100 are expected and the committee in charge is composed of Fred Kruepper, Willet Clayton, G. A. Flynn and John M. Connelly.
Frank J. Rahe, manager of the D. N. Foster Furniture store in this city, returned Thursday night from Muncie, where he attended a meeting of the executive board of the Indiana State Furniture Dealers' association. Routine business held the attention of the entire session.
William H. Rohan, cashier of the Old National bank, will return Sunday from an eastern trip. Mr. Rohan visited New York, Baltimore, Philadelphia and other points of interest. Returning he will stop at Washington to meet Mrs. Rohan, who attended the inaugural ceremonies.

BUT TWO LOSE LIFE.

New York Harbor Collision Proves to Have Been Less Serious.

New York, March 14.—Only two men met death in the harbor collision late last night in which the steamer Wickoff was cut in two and sunk. For a time it was thought eleven men had drowned but counting of noses today showed that the only victims were D. Hyer, fireman, and John Jones, cook. Twelve other men were picked up by the vessel which rammed the lighter. Although her identity was unknown last night, she was, according to the New York and New Jersey Steamboat company, owners of the Wickoff, the fishing steamer Heroine. The thirteenth man, a negro deckhand, was saved by a passing ferryboat.

DENOUNCES NIGHT STUDY.

Illinois Physician Says It Ruins Health of Children.

Waukegan, Ill., March 14.—Dr. J. C. Foley, city physician, is opposed to the practice of compelling children attending public schools to study at home, and he proposes to do all in his power to end the practice in Waukegan.

"Waukegan, like many other cities, is ruining the health of its children by compelling them to study evenings when they should be enjoying a period of recreation or sleeping," he said. "There is something radically wrong with the system when pupils can not do their studying at school. If necessary, let us lengthen the period they stay at school."

WEATHERHOGG TO DRAW BANK PLANS

PLANNED HOTEL, TOO

Charles R. Weatherhogg, of this city, has been awarded the contract for drawing plans for the new $80,000 First National bank building at Laporte, Ind. This makes the second big contract for local architect at Lapore, as he has already prepared plans for the new hotel building, which is fashioned after the Anthony in this city. He also has several smaller contracts here.

At the meeting of the directors a general plan of architecture was agreed on which will make the building one of the finest in this section of the state. The column effect is to be secured all around the building, both on Main street and Michigan avenue. The bank and trust company will be on the first floor of the building and the other floors will be reserved for offices. The entrance to the building will be in front, the plans calling for an entrance into the bank, and also a separate entrance for the elevator lobby, which will be practically the only accessible manner of reaching the upper floors.

Not an inch of space of the new building is to be wasted and even the basement is to be fitted up in elaborate style and used for various purposes. The directors' room is to be located there and there will be a rest room for ladies and other conveniences for the public.

The building will be of stone, brick and steel and will be fireproof throughout in every detail.

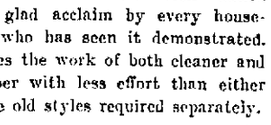
The "S S" COMBINATION CLEANER



Suction for Dust — Brush for Threads

This Combination Sweeper and Vacuum Cleaner has been hailed with glad acclaim by every housewife who has seen it demonstrated. It does the work of both cleaner and sweeper with less effort than either of the old styles required separately.

Saves Time and Work

Takes less effort and therefore saves labor. The time expended produces double results because in one operation you accomplish the work formerly accomplished in two. It also makes housecleaning sanitary, all the dust and germs being confined in the machine instead of distributed throughout the atmosphere.

See It Work

Come into our store and have it demonstrated by our expert. It will well reward your time and interest.
